

CONTENTS

Preface	7
Making Maori
1. The Prehistory of New Zealand	13
Hawaiki	13
Lenses on Prehistory	19
First Settlement	27
2. Hunters and Gardeners	37
The Thickening Archipelago	38
The Hunter-Gardener Thesis	44
Bone, Stone, Style	50
Story	58
3. The Rise of the Tribes	67
The Sophisticated Economics of the New Zealand Maori	67
Children of Tu	75
Regrouping and Rivalry	81
4. Life Before History	90
A Political Geography of Eighteenth-Century Aotearoa	91
Gendering Prehistory	99
Gods and Games	105
Contact and Empire
5. The European Discovery of New Zealand	117
Discoveries and Inventions	117
The Myths of Empire	123
Agents of Vice and Virtue	127
6. The Maori Discovery of Europe	140
The Legacy of Ruatara	141
The Iron Patu	148
7. Fatal Impact?	156
The Musket Wars	156
Guns and Bibles	164
Harriet and the Alligator	169
Disease and Depopulation	173

8. Empire?	179
British Intervention	180
States and Treaties	187
Converting Consent	197
Limiting Consent: The Warring Forties	204
9. Converting Conversion	212
God and Money	213
Land and Law	224
10. Conquest?	229
The Rise of Pan-Tribalism	232
The Wars of the 1860s	235
11. Swamps, Sticks and Carrots	247
Swamps and Marriage	249
Sticks and Carrots	257
Making Pakeha
12. The Pakeha Prospectus	278
The Colonising Crusade	279
The New Zealand of the North	287
The Pakeha Myths of Settlement	297
13. Getting In	313
Getting Britons	315
Getting Gentry	321
Subverting the Prospectus: The Populist Compact	328
14. Taken In?	338
Taking Out: Sheep and Gold	340
The Progress Industry and Its Allies	349
Making It: Manufacturing and Farming	360
Taking Off: The Camp Town Races	367
15. Getting On	376
Getting On Decently	377
Women's Lots	387
Getting On Top	397
16. Lumped, Split and Bound	411
Old Lumps and New	412
Crews or Atoms?	424
Ties That Bind	437
Greater Britain	446
References	451
Index	484