

Contents

Introduction	xiii
On the Distinction of “Jr.”: Geographies of My Father Name	3
Libraries of Consciousness: Public Reading and American Identity	23
A Book of Southern Distinction: The Souls of Black Folk at 100	33
Still Crazy after All These Years: A Yale Black Studies Story	53

The Poetry of Impulse:
Black Words on Southern Green

67

Modernity and the Transatlantic Rupture:
Sugar and the New South

81

Traveling with Faulkner:
A Tale of Myth, Contemporaneity, and Southern Letters

97

“If you see Robert Penn Warren, ask him:
Who does speak for the Negro?”
Reflections on Monk, Black Writing, and Percival Everett’s Erasure

121

Failed Prophet and Falling Stock:
Why Ralph Ellison Was Never Avant-Garde

151

The Catch: A Meditation on Family, Mental Illness, and My Father

165

Conclusion: Even God Believes in “No Guarantees”

185

Suggestions for Further Reading

193

Acknowledgments

197