

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Introduction .....	1
Chapter One
Violence to Women, Women's Rights, and Their Defenders in Medieval German Literature .....	37
Chapter Two
Women Speak up at the Medieval Court: Gender Roles and Public Influence in Hartmann von Aue's Erec and Gottfried von Strassburg's Tristan and Isolde .....	69
Chapter Three
Women's Secular and Spiritual Power in the Middle Ages. Two Case Studies: Hildegard von Bingen and Marie de France .....	105
Chapter Four
Gender Crossing, Spiritual Transgression, and the Epistemological Experience of the Divine in Mystical Discourse: Hildegard von Bingen .....	135
Chapter Five
The Winsbeckin – Female Discourse or Male Projection? New Questions to a Middle High German Gendered Didactic Text in Comparison with Christine de Pizan .....	159
Chapter Six
Domestic Violence in Medieval and Early-Modern German French, Italian, and English Literature (Marie de France, Boccaccio, and Geoffrey Chaucer) .....	187
Chapter Seven
Reading, Listening, and Writing Communities in Late Medieval Women's Dominican Convents: The Mystical Drive Toward the World. The Testimony of the Sisterbooks .....	231

Chapter Eight

Margery Kempe as a Writer: A Woman's Voice in the Mystical and Literary Discourse .....	271
--	-----

Chapter Nine

Helene Kottanner: A Fifteenth-Century Eye-Witness Turned Author. The Earliest Medieval Memoirs by a German Woman Writer .....	309
--	-----

Chapter Ten

Sixteenth-Century Cookbooks, Artes Literature, and Female Voices: Anna Weckerin (Keller) and Sabina Welser .....	339
--	-----

Conclusion .....	367
------------------	-----

Bibliography .....	387
--------------------	-----

Index .....	449
-------------	-----