

Contents

Acknowledgements	7
Introduction
Mark Williams	9
PART ONE: INDIVIDUAL AUTHORS
1 'The Sod Under My Feet': Katherine Mansfield
Lydia Wevers	31
2 The Childish Empire and the Empire of Children: Colonial and Alternative Dominions in Robin Hyde's Check to Your King and Wednesday's Children
Chris Price	49
3 Frank at Last
Kai Jensen	68
4 Sacrifice and Signification in the Poetry of Allen Curnow
Alex Calder	83
5 James K. Baxter and the Dialect of the Tribe
Alan Riach	105
6 Scandalously In-Different? Janet Frame, Post- modernism and Gender
Susan Ash	123
7 Keri Hulme and 'Love's Wounded Beings'
Anna Smith	140
8 The Old Man's Example: Manhire in the Seventies
John Newton	162
9 Patricia Grace and Complete Communication
Jane McRae	188

PART TWO: TRENDS, INFLUENCES, NEW DIRECTIONS

10	'Bliss', and Why Ignorance Won't Do: The Use of Criticism and Theory in Current Reading Practices Mary Paul	211
11	'History' in the New Zealand Novel and Film Today Anne Maxwell	232
12	Holding the Line: Contested Contexts in Recent Verse Alan Brunton	249
13	Opening the Archive: Robin Hyde, Eileen Duggan and the Persistence of Record Michele Leggott	266
14	Re-Playing and Dis-Playing the Nation: New Zealand Drama Joanne Tompkins	294
15	A Fantastic Tale Margaret Mahy	307
	Bibliography	317
	Contributors	329
	Index	332