

Contents

Introduction: The New Metaphysics of Immanence

- The revival of metaphysics 9
- The unusual suspects 13
- The scholarship 17
- Organization 22

Bergson's Matter-Image: The Degradation of the Impersonal

- Bergson and the problem of dualism 25
- Matter: an aggregate of images 36
- Bergson and associationism 42
- Memory and memory-images 46
- Pure memory and déjà-vu 53

Sartre's Image-Consciousness: The Allergic Reaction to Matter

- Sartre and the impersonal 63
- Sartre's dualism 65
- Sartre and the phenomenology of the image 68
- Sartre's fantasy of 'natural signification' 70
- Husserl and Sartre 73
- The 'bastardization' of impersonal consciousness 81
- Imagination* 88
- The Psychology of Imagination* 95
- Image-consciousness 107
- Between Idealism and Realism 111

Lyotard's Sublime: The Ontologization of the Image

- The event 123
- From nausea to sublimity: Sartre and Lyotard 124
- The postmodern sublime: the image as event 128
- The Kantian sublime 131

Lyotard's critique 134
The sublime and time 148
Barnett Newman 151

Baudrillard's Simulacrum: The End of Visibility

The involuntary Platonist 171
The real: Bergson and Baudrillard 172
The real: Sartre and Baudrillard 174
The virtual 176
The impersonal 183
The fatal 184
Giacometti 188
'Seduction' and 'production' 189
The real and the hyperreal 196
The event 199
Nostalgia for the subject 209

Deleuze's Time-Image: Getting Rid of Ourselves

The ontologization of the film image 221
Representation and point of view 223
Deleuze and the fantasy of 'natural signification' 226
Types of images 229
The time-image: between ontology and history 232
Deleuze and Kant 234
Deleuze and Baudrillard 237
The impersonal: banal, nauseating or sublime? 241
The falsification of time 246
Signification and a-signification 253
Getting rid of ourselves? 254

Imaginary Time in Contemporary Cinema

Prolegomena to a 'metaphysical' cinema 261
The impersonal, the infinite and the virtual 265
Time and point of view 270

Bibliography 307

Index 313