

Table of Contents

Preface	V
Acknowledgements	IX
 Thomas A. Perry
Introduction	1
 I. The Domain of Linguistic Theory
Gerald A. Sanders
Linguistically-Significant Attributes of Linguistic Objects	9
Jessica R. Wirth
Discourse Grammars and Conversational Principles	47
Robert Berdan
Idealizations in the Development of a Sociolinguistic Theory	73
 II. The Methodological Status of Linguistic Theories
Jon D. Ringen
Linguistics Facts
A Study of the Empirical Scientific Status of Transformational Generative Grammars	97
Östen Dahl
Is Linguistics Empirical? A Critique of Esa Itkonen's Linguistics and Metascience	133
Esa Itkonen
Reply to Dahl	147
First Rebuttal: Östen Dahl	152
Second Rebuttal: Esa Itkonen	158
Bruce L. Derwing
Against Autonomous Linguistics	163
Per Linell
On the Similarity Between Skinner and Chomsky	190

III. Formal Methods in Linguistic Research
Larry G. Hutchinson
Axiom, Theorem, and Rule	203
F. B. D'Agostino
The Relevance of Mathematical Linguistics for Empirical Linguistics	219
IV. The Interpretation of Linguistic Arguments
Rudolph P. Botha
'The Theory Comparison Method' vs. 'The Theory Exposition Method' in Linguistic Inquiry	239
Michael B. Kac
On Grammatical Ambiguity	261
F. B. D'Agostino
Generative Semantics: Ethnoscience or Ethnomethodology?	289
V. Quantitative Methods in Linguistic Research
Sidney Greenbaum
Syntactic Frequency and Acceptability	301
Linda J. Schwartz
Syntactic Markedness and Frequency of Occurrence	315
Esa Itkonen
Qualitative vs. Quantitative Analysis in Linguistics	334
Author Index
	367
Subject Index
	371