

Contents

Introduction	1
SECTION ONE Theory and practice	5
1 Applied linguistics: the pursuit of relevance	7
2 Models and fictions	21
3 The role of theory in practice	28
SECTION TWO Discourse: the use of written language	37
4 The realization of rules in written discourse	39
5 New starts and different kinds of failure	54
6 Conceptual and communicative functions in written discourse	68
7 Reading and communication	81
SECTION THREE Discourse: schema, procedure, and sign	95
8 Procedures for discourse processing	97
9 Types of linguistic sign in texts	125
SECTION FOUR The use of literature	137
10 The deviant language of poetry	139
11 Reference and representation as modes of meaning	150
12 The use of literature	160
SECTION FIVE English for specific purposes	175
13 Criteria for course design	177
14 ESP and the curse of Caliban	189
15 English in training and education	201

SECTION SIX	Communicative language teaching	213
16	Teaching language as and for communication	215
17	Course design and discourse process	229
18	Competence and capacity in language learning	242
Bibliography		253