

CONTENTS

Acknowledgements	xiii
Notation and abbreviations	xiv
1 Introduction	1
1.1 Predicates and arguments	2
1.2 Grammatical roles	4
1.2.1 Grammatical and notional roles	4
1.2.2 Types of marking	6
1.2.3 Agent and Patient	8
1.2.4 Other grammatical roles	10
1.3 Grammatical relations	11
1.3.1 Accusative, ergative etc.	11
1.3.2 Roles and relations (i)	14
1.4 Passive and antipassive	16
1.4.1 Promotion and demotion	16
1.4.2 Roles and relations (ii)	18
1.5 Other issues	21
2 Roles and relations	22
2.1 Agent and Patient	22
2.1.1 The universality of the distinction	22
2.1.2 Notional roles	25
2.2 Subject, Object and animacy	29
2.3 Beneficiary-Dative	31
2.3.1 Basic uses	31
2.3.2 Promotion and demotion	34
2.3.3 Animacy	36
2.4 Primary and Secondary Objects	37
2.5 Experiencers, 'modal subjects' etc.	40
2.6 Locatives and Instrumentals	44
2.7 Other roles and sub-roles	47

2.8	Problematic constructio	49
3	Accusative, ergative and agentive systems	53
3.1	Ergative marking	53
3.2	Conflicting criteria	56
3.3	Variation by grammatical category	57
3.3.1	Tense/Aspect	57
3.3.2	Class of nominal	59
3.3.3	Main/subordinate clause	61
3.4	Systems with three basic relations	63
3.5	Agentive systems	65
3.5.1	Basic systems	66
3.5.2	Meaning	70
3.5.3	Variation by grammatical category	73
3.5.4	Other types of agentivity	76
3.6	Georgian and Tabassaran	78
3.6.1	Georgian	79
3.6.2	Tabassaran	82
3.6.3	Semantic issues	85
4	Syntactic relation	88
4.1	Syntactic pivots	88
4.1.1	Coordination	89
4.1.2	Complementation	93
4.1.3	Relatives	96
4.1.4	Other constructions	100
4.2	Syntax vs. morphology	104
4.3	Pivots and 'dative subjects'	107
4.4	Imperatives	111
4.5	Pivots in an agentive system	113
4.6	The syntactic role of passive and antipassive	114
5	Passive	117
5.1	The identification of the passive	117
5.2	Promotion of Object	119
5.3	Promotion of oblique terms	125
5.4	Impersonal and 'affected' passives	127
5.5	Passives and topicalization	132
5.6	Functions of the passive	136
5.7	Varieties of passive	138

6	Passive: related and problematic issues	142
6.1	Reflexives and indefinites as passives	142
6.2	Other passive-like constructions	145
6.3	The middle voice	150
6.4	Multiple functions of passive markers	156
6.5	Passives in ergative systems	158
6.6	Promotion to object	161
	6.6.1 The applicative	161
	6.6.2 Applicatives and passivization	163
	6.6.3 The situation in English	169
6.7	Theoretical issues	171
7	Antipassive	176
7.1	Form of the antipassive	176
7.2	Functions of the antipassive	178
	7.2.1 Creation of pivots	178
	7.2.2 Detransitivization	181
7.3	Promotion of oblique relations	186
7.4	Detransitives without antipassive	187
7.5	Incorporation	191
7.6	Lexical issues	195
7.7	Antipassives in accusative systems	197
7.8	The typological status of ergative systems	199
8	Topic and inverse systems	201
8.1	Topic systems	201
	8.1.1 Morphology	201
	8.1.2 Syntax	204
8.2	Inverse systems	207
	8.2.1 Basic systems	208
	8.2.2 Inverse systems and passives	211
9	Causatives	214
9.1	Forms of the causative	214
9.2	The 'paradigm case'	218
9.3	Contrasting structures	221
	9.3.1 'Active' and 'passive' causatives	221
	9.3.2 'Single event' causatives	224
	9.3.3 Periphrastic vs. morphological causatives	226
	9.3.4 Other issues	227

9.4	Double causatives	231
9.5	Related constructions	232
9.6	Adversity passives	234
9.7	An alternative interpretation of causatives	236
9.8	Final observations	239
	Glossary of terms	241
	References and citation index	243
	Language index	253
	General index	255