

CONTENTS

| | |
|--|-----------|
| 1. BACKGROUND | 1 |
| 1.1. The study of language and the study of syntax | 1 |
| 1.1.1. Interconnections | 1 |
| 1.1.2. Historical threads | 3 |
| 1.2. Grammar, discourse and cognition: syntax as science | 10 |
| 1.3. On the notion “rule of grammar”: categories, norms and prototypes | 11 |
| 1.3.1. Platonic categories and exceptionless rules | 11 |
| 1.3.2. Discrete categories, fuzzy-edged continuum and prototypes | 12 |
| 1.3.3. Prototypes and metaphoric extension | 17 |
| 1.3.3.1. Metaphoric induction into a prototype | 17 |
| 1.3.3.2. Metaphoric extension of the prototype | 19 |
| 1.3.4. The functional significance of prototypes | 22 |
| 1.4. Typological universals and “laws” of science | 23 |
| 1.5. Scope and uses of this book | 25 |
| 1.6. Organization of volume I | 27 |
| 2. METHODOLOGICAL PRELIMINARIES: COMMUNICATIVE FUNCTION AND SYNTACTIC STRUCTURE | 29 |
| 2.1. Introduction: the biological analogy | 29 |
| 2.2. Major functional realms coded by human language | 30 |
| 2.3. Functional domains coded by syntax | 33 |
| 2.4. The notion of structure: coding devices in syntax | 35 |
| 2.5. Discrete syntactic coding of non-discrete functional domains | 36 |
| 2.6. Cross-language diversity and syntactic typology | 38 |
| 2.7. Coding principles, iconicity and explanation in syntax | 39 |
| 2.8. The functional bind in syntactic coding: simple vs. complex sentences | 41 |
| 2.9. Developmental determination of syntactic structure | 44 |
| 3. WORD CLASSES | 47 |
| 3.1. Introduction: meaning and information | 47 |

| | |
|---|----|
| 3.2. Lexical vs. grammatical vocabulary | 48 |
| 3.3. Morphotactics and function | 50 |
| 3.4. The time-stability scale of lexical classes | 51 |
| 3.5. Nouns | 56 |
| 3.5.1. Semantic characterization | 56 |
| 3.5.2. Morphological characterization | 57 |
| 3.5.2.1. Noun-class markers | 58 |
| 3.5.2.2. Number | 60 |
| 3.5.2.3. Articles | 61 |
| 3.5.2.4. Case-role markers | 61 |
| 3.5.2.5. Possessor pronouns | 62 |
| 3.5.3. Syntactic/distributional characterization | 63 |
| 3.6. Verbs | 64 |
| 3.6.1. Semantic characterization | 64 |
| 3.6.2. Morphological characterization | 64 |
| 3.6.2.1. Tense-aspect-modality | 65 |
| 3.6.2.2. Negation markers | 66 |
| 3.6.2.3. Agreement and/or pronouns | 67 |
| 3.6.2.4. Case-marking morphemes | 68 |
| 3.6.2.5. Definitizing morphemes | 69 |
| 3.6.2.6. Transitivizing and de-transitivizing morphemes . | 70 |
| 3.6.2.7. Speech-act indicators | 70 |
| 3.6.2.8. Conjunction and subordination markers | 71 |
| 3.6.2.9. Incorporated objects or adverbs | 72 |
| 3.6.3. Syntactic/distributional characterization | 73 |
| 3.7. Adjectives | 73 |
| 3.7.1. Semantic characterization | 73 |
| 3.7.2. Morphological characterization | 74 |
| 3.7.3. Syntactic/distributional characterization | 77 |
| 3.8. Adverbs | 77 |
| 3.8.1. Semantic characterization | 77 |
| 3.8.1.1. Manner adverbs | 77 |
| 3.8.1.2. Time adverbs | 78 |
| 3.8.1.3. Place adverbs | 78 |
| 3.8.1.4. Speaker's comment adverbs | 78 |
| 3.8.1.4.1. Comments on desirability/rightness . | 78 |
| 3.8.1.4.2. Comments on the character or mo- tives of the subject | 79 |

| | |
|---|-----------|
| 3.8.1.4.3. Epistemic comments | 79 |
| 3.8.2. Morphological characterization | 79 |
| 3.8.3. Syntactic/distributional characterization | 81 |
| 3.9. Minor word classes | 82 |
| 3.9.1. Pronouns | 83 |
| 3.9.2. Demonstratives and articles | 84 |
| 3.9.3. Sentential conjunctions and subordinations | 84 |
| 3.9.4. Interjections | 84 |
| 4. SIMPLE SENTENCES: PREDICATIONS AND CASE-ROLES . | 85 |
| 4.1. Introduction | 85 |
| 4.1.1. Function and typology of simple clauses | 85 |
| 4.1.2. States, events and actions | 87 |
| 4.1.3. Patients, datives and agents | 87 |
| 4.2. Verb classes | 89 |
| 4.2.1. Subjectless verbs | 89 |
| 4.2.2. Copular sentences | 91 |
| 4.2.3. Objectless verbs | 93 |
| 4.2.4. Verbs requiring a sentential subject | 94 |
| 4.2.5. Verbs with a direct object: Semantic transitivity | 96 |
| 4.2.5.1. Prototypical transitive verbs | 96 |
| 4.2.5.2. Less prototypical transitive verbs | 98 |
| 4.2.5.2.1. Verbs with a locative direct object . | 98 |
| 4.2.5.2.2. Verbs with a recipient or locative direct object and an implied patient . | 99 |
| 4.2.5.2.3. Verbs with a moving part of the subject | 100 |
| 4.2.5.2.4. Verbs with a dative-experiencer subject | 100 |
| 4.2.5.2.5. Verbs with a reciprocal/associative object | 102 |
| 4.2.5.2.6. The verb 'have' | 103 |
| 4.2.5.2.7. Verbs with cognate objects | 105 |
| 4.2.5.3. Some residual problems of semantic transitivity . | 106 |
| 4.2.5.3.1. Humanity, animacy and agentiveness . | 106 |
| 4.2.5.3.2. Object suppression | 108 |
| 4.2.5.3.3. Object creation | 109 |
| 4.2.6. Verbs with an indirect object | 109 |

| | |
|---|-----|
| 4.2.6.1. Verbs with a locative object | 110 |
| 4.2.6.2. Verbs with a directional object | 112 |
| 4.2.6.3. Verbs with an abstract directional object | 112 |
| 4.2.6.4. Verbs with an associative object | 113 |
| 4.2.7. Verbs with two nominal objects ('bi-transitive verbs') | 113 |
| 4.2.7.1. Verbs with a locative indirect object | 113 |
| 4.2.7.2. Verbs with a dative-benefactive indirect object | 114 |
| 4.2.7.3. Verbs with an instrumental-locative alternation | 115 |
| 4.2.7.4. Verbs with two direct objects | 116 |
| 4.2.8. Verbs with three nominal objects: Upper limits on complexity | 116 |
| 4.2.9. Verbs with verbal/sentential complements | 117 |
| 4.2.9.1. Modality verbs | 117 |
| 4.2.9.2. Cognition and utterance verbs | 119 |
| 4.2.9.2.1. Indirect quote complements | 121 |
| 4.2.9.2.2. Direct quote complements | 121 |
| 4.2.9.2.3. Embedded question complements | 122 |
| 4.2.9.3. Manipulative verbs | 123 |
| 4.2.9.4. Information verbs | 124 |
| 4.3. Double membership in verb classes | 125 |
| 4.4. Optional case-roles | 126 |
| 4.4.0. Summary of the major case-roles | 126 |
| 4.4.1. Benefactive | 127 |
| 4.4.2. Instrumental | 128 |
| 4.4.3. Associative | 129 |
| 4.4.4. Manner | 131 |
| 4.4.5. Time | 131 |
| 4.4.6. Purpose | 132 |
| 4.4.7. Intent | 132 |
| 4.5. Semantic complexity and case-roles | 133 |
| 5. CASE-MARKING TYPOLOGY: SUBJECT, OBJECT AND TRANSITIVITY | 135 |
| 5.1. Introduction | 135 |
| 5.1.1. Functional levels | 135 |
| 5.1.2. Grammatical coding | 136 |
| 5.1.3. Transitivity | 136 |
| 5.2. Pragmatic case-roles, clausal topics and multi-propositional discourse | 137 |

| | |
|---|-----|
| 5.3. The subject case-role | 139 |
| 5.3.1. The primacy of agent | 140 |
| 5.3.2. The position of dative | 141 |
| 5.3.3. The position of patient | 141 |
| 5.3.4. The position of locative | 142 |
| 5.3.5. The position of instrumental | 143 |
| 5.3.6. The problem of dative subjects | 143 |
| 5.4. The cross-linguistic typology of subjectization | 145 |
| 5.4.1. Preliminaries | 145 |
| 5.4.2. The nominative-accusative case-marking type | 147 |
| 5.4.3. The active vs. non-active case-marking type | 149 |
| 5.4.4. The ergative-absolutive case-marking type and syntactic transitivity | 151 |
| 5.4.4.1. Preliminaries | 151 |
| 5.4.4.2. Split ergativity | 153 |
| 5.4.4.2.1. Split ergativity and transitivity | 153 |
| 5.4.4.2.1.1. The agentivity scale | 154 |
| 5.4.4.2.1.2. The patienthood scale | 155 |
| 5.4.4.2.1.3. The perfectivity scale | 156 |
| 5.4.4.2.1.4. The referentiality/topicality scale | 158 |
| 5.4.4.2.2. Split ergativity and the topic hierarchies | 159 |
| 5.4.4.2.3. The ergative-antipassive variation | 161 |
| 5.4.4.2.3.1. The Eskimo evidence | 162 |
| 5.4.4.2.3.2. The Dyrbal evidence | 163 |
| 5.4.4.2.3.3. The Nez-Perce evidence | 163 |
| 5.4.4.2.3.4. The Chamorro evidence | 163 |
| 5.4.4.2.4. The coding of transitivity in Ergative languages: Ergative, passive and anti-passive | 164 |
| 5.4.4.3. Deep and surface ergativity | 165 |
| 5.4.5. The Philippine verb-coding case-marking type | 167 |
| 5.5. The direct-object case-role | 168 |
| 5.5.1. Preliminaries | 168 |
| 5.5.2. The topic hierarchy of accession to direct-objecthood | 169 |
| 5.5.3. The direct object as a pragmatic case | 169 |
| 5.5.4. The cross-linguistic typology of objectization | 171 |
| 5.5.4.1. Promotion to direct object: Preliminaries | 171 |

| | |
|---|-----|
| 5.5.4.2. The word-order type: Israeli Hebrew and Sherpa | 172 |
| 5.5.4.3. Limited optional promotion: English | 173 |
| 5.5.4.4. Obligatory promotion of DAT/BEN objects: Ute, Bantu, Tsotsil | 175 |
| 5.5.4.5. Extended promotion via verb-coding: Kinya-Rwanda | 177 |
| 5.5.4.6. The serial-verb sources of object case-marking | 179 |
| 5.5.4.7. The nominal-genitive source of object case-marking | 180 |
| 5.5.5. Further typological issues in objectivization | 181 |
| 5.5.5.1. Marked vs. unmarked accusatives (patients) | 181 |
| 5.5.5.2. Why the accusative is the least-marked case | 183 |
| 5.6. Case marking vs. case differentiation | 183 |
| 6. WORD-ORDER TYPOLOGY | 187 |
| 6.1. Introduction | 187 |
| 6.2. Degree of rigidity of word-order | 188 |
| 6.3. Consistency and “purity” of rigid word-order types | 188 |
| 6.4. Rigid word-order types | 190 |
| 6.4.1. The basic word-order in simple clauses | 190 |
| 6.4.1.1. The subject-verb-object (SVO) word-order: English | 190 |
| 6.4.1.2. The subject-object-verb (SOV) word-order: Sherpa | 191 |
| 6.4.1.3. The verb-subject-object (VSO) word order: Jacalteco | 193 |
| 6.4.1.4. The verb-object-subject (VOS) word-order: Malagasy | 196 |
| 6.4.1.5. The object-verb-subject (OVS) word-order | 198 |
| 6.4.1.6. The verb-agent-patient-dative word-order variant of VSO | 198 |
| 6.4.2. The relative order of nouns vs. modifiers in noun phrases | 199 |
| 6.4.2.1. Pre-nominal modifiers: Japanese | 200 |
| 6.4.2.2. Post-nominal modifiers: Hebrew | 201 |
| 6.4.2.3. Typological inconsistency in NP syntax | 202 |
| 6.5. Word-order flexibility | 204 |
| 6.5.1. The pragmatics of word-order variation in Ute | 204 |

| | |
|--|------------|
| 6.5.2. Definiteness, indefiniteness and word-order variation in Mandarin | 206 |
| 6.5.3. The pragmatics of the subject position in Biblical Hebrew | 208 |
| 6.5.4. Subject position in Spanish: A conflict of pragmatic principles | 210 |
| 6.5.5. "Free word-order" languages | 212 |
| 6.6. Mixed word-order types at the clause level | 212 |
| 6.6.1. Preliminaries | 212 |
| 6.6.2. Different word-order in main vs. subordinate clauses | 212 |
| 6.6.3. Different word-order of direct vs. indirect objects | 214 |
| 6.6.4. Different word-order in referential vs. non-referential objects | 214 |
| 6.6.5. Different word-order in nominal vs. sentential objects | 215 |
| 6.6.6. Different word-order in definite vs. indefinite NP's | 216 |
| 6.6.7. Different word-order in continuous vs. discontinuous topics | 216 |
| 6.6.8. Different word-order in free vs. nominalized clauses | 216 |
| 6.6.9. Different order for pronominal vs. nominal NP's | 217 |
| 6.7. Basic word-order and word-order within noun phrases | 220 |
| 6.7.1. Preliminaries | 220 |
| 6.7.2. Possessive/genitive modifiers | 221 |
| 6.7.3. REL-clause modifiers | 222 |
| 6.7.4. Quantifiers or numeral modifiers | 223 |
| 6.7.5. Adjectival modifiers | 224 |
| 6.7.6. Definite articles and demonstratives | 226 |
| 6.8. Basic word-order and bound morphology | 228 |
| 6.8.1. Preliminaries | 228 |
| 6.8.2. Case-marking morphology | 228 |
| 6.8.3. Tense-aspect-modal morphology | 230 |
| 6.8.4. Negation markers | 232 |
| 6.8.5. Verb derivational morphemes | 234 |
| 6.8.6. Noun derivational morphemes | 236 |
| 6.9. Concluding remarks | 237 |
| 7. INFORMATION-THEORETIC PRELIMINARIES TO DIS-COURSE PRAGMATICS | 239 |
| 7.1. Introduction | 239 |

| | |
|--|------------|
| 7.2. Multi-propositional discourse and the genesis of foreground/background | 240 |
| 7.2.1. Tautology, contradiction and informational coherence | 240 |
| 7.2.2. Being in the middle and the cumulation of background | 241 |
| 7.2.3. Thematic structure and shifting coherence | 243 |
| 7.2.4. Thematic structure and the four unities | 245 |
| 7.3. The function of shared background information in communication | 246 |
| 7.3.1. Sharing a universe: Information vs. manipulation | 246 |
| 7.3.2. New vs. old information | 249 |
| 7.3.2.1. The use of old information in participant deixis | 250 |
| 7.3.2.2. The use of old information in propositional deixis | 250 |
| 7.4. The speaker-hearer contract and propositional modalities | 252 |
| 7.4.1. The logic-bound tradition: Truth, necessity, possibility | 252 |
| 7.4.2. Logic-bound pragmatics: Presupposition and assertion | 252 |
| 7.4.3. Discourse-pragmatics: The communicative contract | 253 |
| 7.5. Focus of new information and the scope of assertion | 256 |
| 7.6. The rate of incrementing new information: the “one chunk per clause” principle | 258 |
| 7.7. The role of old information in integrating new information | 263 |
| 7.8. Moving from specific to generic information | 265 |
| 8. TENSE-ASPECT-MODALITY | 269 |
| 8.1. Introduction | 269 |
| 8.1.1. Tense-aspect-modality in the grammar | 269 |
| 8.1.2. Semantics vs. pragmatics of TAM | 269 |
| 8.1.3. Deictic foci in sentences | 270 |
| 8.1.4. TAM morphology | 270 |
| 8.1.5. Chapter organization | 271 |
| 8.2. The semantic/functional domain of tense-aspect-modality | 272 |
| 8.2.1. Preliminaries | 272 |
| 8.2.2. Tense and sequential time | 273 |
| 8.2.3. Duration, continuity and punctuality | 274 |
| 8.2.4. Perfectivity | 276 |
| 8.2.5. Perfect vs. simple: Perfectivity, relevance, anteriority, counter-sequentiality | 278 |
| 8.2.5.1. Preliminaries | 278 |
| 8.2.5.2. Perfectivity and accomplishment | 278 |

| | |
|--|-----|
| 8.2.5.3. Lingering/current relevance | 280 |
| 8.2.5.4. Anteriority | 281 |
| 8.2.5.5. Counter-sequentiality | 282 |
| 8.2.5.6. What binds the perfect complex together | 283 |
| 8.2.6. Modality: Fact vs. possibility | 284 |
| 8.2.6.1. Preliminaries | 284 |
| 8.2.6.2. Realis and irrealis in simple clauses | 285 |
| 8.2.6.3. Modality in complex clauses | 286 |
| 8.2.7. Tense-aspect-modality in discourse: Foreground vs. background | 287 |
| 8.3. The coding of tense-aspect-modality: toward a typology | 290 |
| 8.3.1. Preliminaries | 290 |
| 8.3.2. The TAM system of Creoles | 290 |
| 8.3.3. English: Tense and bound morphology | 295 |
| 8.3.4. Early Biblical Hebrew: Topic shift, thematic continuity and old inflections | 296 |
| 8.3.5. Bemba: Expanded tense and the focus aspect | 300 |
| 8.3.6. Ute: The immediate relevance tense-aspect | 303 |
| 8.3.7. Sherpa: Perfective/imperfective and evidentiality | 306 |
| 8.3.8. Bikol: Realis vs. irrealis | 309 |
| 8.3.9. Chuave: Clause chaining and switch reference | 310 |
| 8.4. Tense-aspect-modal categories in subordinate clauses | 314 |
| 8.4.1. Preliminaries | 314 |
| 8.4.2. Syntax vs. discourse-pragmatics in subordinate clauses | 315 |
| 8.4.3. TAM categories in topical/backgrounded/presupposed clauses | 315 |
| 8.4.4. Modality in verb complements | 317 |
| 8.4.5. Subjunctives | 318 |
| NEGATION | 321 |
| 9.1. Introduction: negation as a propositional modality | 321 |
| 9.2. Negation as a speech-act: denial and its discourse context | 323 |
| 9.3. Presuppositions and the scope of negation | 324 |
| 9.4. Discourse presuppositionality and negation | 328 |
| 9.5. Narrowing the scope of specific negation | 329 |
| 9.6. Definiteness and referentiality of nouns under the scope of negation | 331 |
| 9.7. Scalarity, relevance and the interpretation of negation | 333 |
| 9.8. The morpho-syntax of negation | 335 |

| | |
|---|------------|
| 9.8.1. Morpho-syntax of neutral negation | 335 |
| 9.8.2. Negative intensifiers, double negation and diachronic change | 337 |
| 9.8.3. Syntactic coding of negative scope | 339 |
| 9.9. Further issues in the grammar and function of negation | 342 |
| 9.9.1. Embedded negation, NEG-transport and scalarity | 342 |
| 9.9.2. Lexical or incorporated negation | 345 |
| 9.9.3. Distributional restrictions, foreground-background and the ontology of negation | 347 |
| 10. PRONOUNS AND GRAMMATICAL AGREEMENT | 353 |
| 10.1. Introduction | 353 |
| 10.2. The semantic basis of pronominal systems | 354 |
| 10.3. Specific organization of pronominal systems | 356 |
| 10.3.1. Ute (Uto-Aztecán) | 356 |
| 10.3.2. Samoan (Austronesian) | 358 |
| 10.3.3. Bemba (Bantu) | 358 |
| 10.4. Grammatical agreement | 360 |
| 10.4.1. Pronouns and agreement | 360 |
| 10.4.2. Obligatory grammatical agreement | 362 |
| 10.4.3. Grammatical agreement and the topic hierarchy | 364 |
| 10.4.3.1. Preliminaries | 364 |
| 10.4.3.2. Semantic case-roles and agreement | 365 |
| 10.4.3.3. Pragmatic/grammatical case-roles and agree- ment | 366 |
| 10.4.3.4. Subject and object agreement in ergative lan- guages | 369 |
| 10.4.3.5. The humanness/animacy hierarchy and agree- ment | 371 |
| 10.4.3.6. The definiteness hierarchy and agreement . . | 372 |
| 10.5. Grammatical agreement of modifiers with the head noun in the NP | 372 |
| 10.6. The functions of grammatical agreement | 375 |
| 10.6.1. The anaphoric-pronoun function | 375 |
| 10.6.2. Marking verb-type and transitivity | 377 |
| 10.6.3. Supplemental case-marking function | 377 |
| 10.6.4. Differentiation between main and subordinate clause . | 378 |
| 10.6.5. Marking existential-presentative constructions . . | 379 |
| 10.7. Indefinite pronouns | 381 |

| | |
|---|-----|
| 10.8. Noun classifiers and pronouns | 384 |
| 11. DEFINITENESS AND REFERENTIALITY | 387 |
| 11.1. Introduction | 387 |
| 11.2. Referentiality | 387 |
| 11.2.1. Existence and reference: The logical tradition | 387 |
| 11.2.2. Fact, non-fact and reference | 391 |
| 11.2.3. Non-fact modalities and non-referential nominals | 393 |
| 11.2.3.1. Tense-aspects | 393 |
| 11.2.3.2. The scope of non-implicative verbs | 393 |
| 11.2.3.3. The scope of complements of non-implicative verbs | 393 |
| 11.2.3.4. The scope of complements of non-factive verbs | 395 |
| 11.2.3.5. The scope of modal operators | 395 |
| 11.2.3.6. The scope of negation | 395 |
| 11.2.3.7. The scope of irrealis adverbial clauses | 396 |
| 11.2.3.8. Nominal predicates | 396 |
| 11.2.3.9. Non-declarative speech-acts | 396 |
| 11.3. Definiteness | 397 |
| 11.3.1. Preliminaries | 397 |
| 11.3.2. Shared knowledge, exact reference and definite description | 398 |
| 11.3.3. Grounds for assuming the assignment of unique reference | 399 |
| 11.3.3.1. Definiteness arising from the permanent file | 399 |
| 11.3.3.2. Definites arising from immediate deictic availability | 400 |
| 11.3.3.3. Definites arising from the specific discourse file | 401 |
| 11.3.4. Definites, indefinites and the active discourse file | 401 |
| 11.3.4.1. Permanent vs. active file | 401 |
| 11.3.4.2. Referential accessibility: Entering and re-entering the discourse | 402 |
| 11.3.4.3. Time-span of the active file | 403 |
| 11.3.4.4. Integrated flow-diagram of referential accessibility | 404 |
| 11.3.5. Generic definites | 405 |
| 11.4. Morpho-syntactic coding of definiteness and referentiality | 406 |
| 11.4.1. Preliminaries | 406 |
| 11.4.2. Morphologically undifferentiated coding: Newari | 408 |

| | |
|---|-----|
| 11.4.3. Word-order coding of definiteness: Mandarin | 408 |
| 11.4.4. Word-order coding of topicality: Ute | 409 |
| 11.4.5. The Creole prototype: Hawaii English Creole | 410 |
| 11.4.6. Definite vs. Indefinite: English | 411 |
| 11.4.7. Referential vs. non-referential: Bemba | 412 |
| 11.4.8. The marking of generic nominals | 413 |
| 11.4.8.1. Definiteness, subjecthood, plurality and incorporation: English | 413 |
| 11.4.8.2. Referentiality and subjecthood: Bemba | 414 |
| 11.4.8.3. Demonstratives and object incorporation: Ute . | 415 |
| 11.4.8.4. Object incorporation: Coptic | 416 |
| 11.4.8.5. The antipassive in an ergative language: Nez Perce | 417 |
| 11.4.9. Other means of coding definiteness | 418 |
| 11.4.9.1. The use of demonstratives as articles | 418 |
| 11.4.9.2. Definite accusative | 419 |
| 11.4.9.3. 'Definite object agreement' | 421 |
| 11.4.10. Definitization and case-roles | 422 |
| 11.5. Scales and continua in definiteness and referentiality | 423 |
| 11.5.1. The pragmatics of referentiality | 423 |
| 11.5.2. Semi-referentiality | 427 |
| 11.5.3. Semi-definiteness | 431 |
| 11.5.4. Indefiniteness, referentiality and the numeral 'one' | 432 |
| BIBLIOGRAPHICAL REFERENCES | 437 |
| INDEX OF SUBJECTS | 455 |