

Contents

Preface	v
D. ABERCROMBIE
(1954) The recording of dialect material	i
(1964a) A phonetician's view of verse structure	6
(1964b) Parameters and phonemes	14
K. H. ALBROW
(1963) The phonology of the personal forms of the verb in Russian	19
G. F. ARNOLD
(1966) Concerning the theory of plosives	29
R. T. BUTLIN
(1936) On the alphabetic notation of certain phonetic features of Malayalam	33
J. C. CATFORD
(1939) On the classification of stop consonants	43
J. R. FIRTH
(1948) Sounds and prosodies	47
D. B. FRY
(1960) Linguistic theory and experimental research	66
A. C. GIMSON
(1945-49) Implications of the phonemic/chronemic grouping of English vowels	88
(1956) The linguistic relevance of stress in English	94

M. A. K. HALLIDAY (1963)	The tones of English	103
E. J. A. HENDERSON (1949)	Prosodies in Siamese: A study in synthesis	127
D. JONES (1931)	The 'word' as a phonetic entity	154
(1944a)	Chronemes and tonemes	159
(1944b)	Some thoughts on the phoneme	168
(1948)	The London school of phonetics	180
(1957)	The history and meaning of the term 'phoneme'	187
P. LADEFOGED, M. H. DRAPER AND D. WHITTERIDGE (1958)	Syllables and stress	205
P. LADEFOGED (1960)	The value of phonetic statements	218
J. LYONS (1962)	Phonemic and non-phonemic phonology: some typological reflections	229
J. D. O'CONNOR AND J. L. M. TRIM (1953)	Vowel, consonant and syllable – a phonological definition	240
R. H. ROBINS (1957)	Aspects of prosodic analysis	262
N. C. SCOTT (1947)	The monosyllable in Szechuanese	278
(1956)	A phonological analysis of the Szechuanese monosyllable	299
A. E. SHARP (1954)	A tonal analysis of the disyllabic noun in the Machame dialect of Chaga	305
J. L. M. TRIM (1959)	Major and minor tone-groups in English	320
E. T. ULDALL (1960)	Attitudinal meanings conveyed by intonation contours	324