

1	Aims and Principles 1
2	Classical Phonemics 16
2.1	Segmental phonemics 16
2.1.1	Analytic procedure 16
2.1.2	Defining the phoneme 24
2.1.3	An illustrative analysis 26
2.2	Prosodic features 35
2.2.1	Stress 36
2.2.2	Pitch 38
2.2.3	'Juncture' 40
2.3	Alternations 41
2.3.1	The allomorph approach 41
2.3.2	Classical morphophonemics 41
2.3.2.1	Suppletions 42
2.3.2.2	Morphologically conditioned alternations 42
2.3.2.3	Phonologically conditioned but non-automatic alternations 42
2.3.2.4	Automatic alternations 43
2.3.2.5	Alternation statements, morphophonemes, and base forms 43
2.3.3	Classical phonemics: conclusion 45
2.4	Prague School phonology 45
3	Prosodic Phonology 54
3.1	Feature smear 54
3.1.1	Long component analysis 56
3.2	The prosodic approach 57
3.2.1	Types of prosodies 58
3.2.2	Polysystemicisms and related matters 61
3.3	An example 63
3.4	Conclusion 67
4	Stratificational Phonology 70
4.1	Organization of a stratificational grammar 70
4.2	The phonemic stratum 71
4.3	Types of linguistic relationships 74
4.4	The evaluation of alternative descriptions 82
4.5	Two illustrative descriptions 86
4.6	Conclusion 90

- 5 Phonological Primes 92
- 5.1 Beyond the phoneme 92
- 5.2 Feature theory 93
  - 5.2.1 Development 93
  - 5.2.2 Criteria 95
    - 5.2.2.1 Phonetic specifiability 96
    - 5.2.2.2 Completeness/universality 96
    - 5.2.2.3 Morphophonemic relevance 97
- 5.3 The features 98
  - 5.3.1 Major-class features 98
  - 5.3.2 Anteriority and coronality 100
  - 5.3.3 Tongue body features 101
  - 5.3.4 Rounding 103
  - 5.3.5 Distributedness 103
  - 5.3.6 Nasality and laterality 103
  - 5.3.7 Closure and release features 103
  - 5.3.8 Tenseness 104
  - 5.3.9 Voicing, aspiration, and related features 105
  - 5.3.10 Stridency 107
  - 5.3.11 Vibration 107
  - 5.3.12 Prosodic features 107
- 5.4 Some problems 108
  - 5.4.1 The naturalness condition 108
  - 5.4.2 The binarity hypothesis 109
  - 5.4.3 Articulatory or acoustic features? 110
- 5.5 Feature representation of segments and segment classes 111

- 6 Generative Phonology I: The SPE Model 114
- 6.1 The phonological component and the form of phonological rules 114
- 6.2 An illustrative analysis 124
- 6.3 Special types of phonological rules 135
- 6.4 Notational conventions 137
- 6.5 Boundaries 143
- 6.6 Syntactic and diacritic features in phonology 151
  - 6.6.1 Syntactic constituent structure 151
  - 6.6.2 Syntactic categories 152
  - 6.6.3 Syntactic features 153
  - 6.6.4 Diacritic features 155
- 6.7 Rule ordering 159
  - 6.7.1 Linear ordering 159
  - 6.7.2 The transformational cycle 163
  - 6.7.3 Excursus: the intermingling of phonology and syntax 165
- 6.8 Underlying representations 166
  - 6.8.1 Lexical redundancy 166
  - 6.8.2 Chomsky and Halle's theory of markedness 168

- 7 Generative Phonology II: Problems in Rule Application 170
- 7.1 Simultaneous or iterative application? 170
- 7.2 Rule Ordering, precedence, and disjunctivity 174
- 7.2.1 Counter-evidence to linear ordering 174
- 7.2.2 Alternative hypotheses 176
- 7.2.2.1 Partial ordering 176
- 7.2.2.2 Local ordering 180
- 7.2.2.3 No extrinsic ordering 184
- 7.2.2.4 Unresolved paradoxes 187
- 7.2.3 On disjunctive application 188
- 7.3 Global constraints and derivational history 190
- 8 Generative Phonology III: Phonological Templates 193
- 8.1 Phonotactics 193
- 8.2 The syllable 199
- 9 Generative Phonology IV: On Constraining the Phonological Rule 204
- 9.1 Morphology, phonology and phonetics 205
- 9.2 How abstract is phonology? 211
- 9.2.1 Problematic features of SPE-type analyses 211
- 9.2.1.1 The diacritic use of phonological features 211
- 9.2.1.2 The phonological use of diacritic features 213
- 9.2.1.3 Abstract representations not justified by alternations 214
- 9.2.2 Towards a solution 216
- 9.2.2.1 Possible evidence for abstract analyses 216
- 9.2.2.1.1 Linguistic change 217
- 9.2.2.1.2 Poetics 218
- 9.2.2.2 Some proposed constraints 220
- 9.2.2.3 Another look at English vowels 222
- 9.3 Natural phonology 225
- 9.3.1 The problem 225
- 9.3.2 Schane's theory of natural processes 227
- 9.3.3 Stampe's 'natural phonology' 233
- 10 On Phonological Change 238
- 10.1 The description of phonological change 238
- 10.1.1 Restructuring 238
- 10.1.2 Rule change 238
- 10.1.2.1 Rule addition 238
- 10.1.2.2 Rule loss 239
- 10.1.2.3 Simplification 240
- 10.1.2.4 Reordering 242
- 10.1.3 Factors determining the direction of rule change 243
- 10.1.3.1 Phonetic transparency 245
- 10.1.3.2 Minimization of allomorphy 246
- 10.1.3.3 Maintenance of contrast 247
- 10.2 The process of phonological change 249

- 10.2.1 The continuity of sound-change 250
- 10.2.2 Lexical diffusion 251
- 10.2.3 Social spread 253
- 10.3 The causes of phonological change 254
  - 10.3.1 Factors already discussed 254
  - 10.3.2 Ease of articulation 255
  - 10.3.3 Structural imbalance 255
  - 10.3.4 Language contact 256
  - 10.3.5 Drift 257

Abbreviated Titles 261

References 263

Indices 273