

Contents

Foreword	vii
X 1 PRELIMINARIES
1.1 Some general observations	1
1.2 Pre-theoretical reflections	4
1.3 Early generative approaches to syntactic change	21
1.4 A theory of grammar	42
1.5 Grammatical theory within the logic of markedness	71
2 A PARADIGM CASE: THE ENGLISH MODALS
2.1 Modals in Modern English	81
2.2 Historical re-analysis	98
2.3 Appendix: periphrastic do	115
X 3 A THEORY OF CHANGE
3.1 The Transparency Principle	121
3.2 A theory of change	141
3.3 Syntactic reconstruction	154
4 MORE CATEGORY CHANGES
4.1 English quantifiers	168
4.2 The English infinitive	186
4.3 Redistribution of existing categories	199
4.4 Serial verbs in Kwa	213
5 CHANGES IN THE LEXICON
5.1 Impersonal verbs in Middle English	229
5.2 Passive constructions	239
5.3 The Greek moods	282

vi Contents

6 ON CYCLIC TRANSFORMATIONS

6.1 NP Preposing

295

6.2 wh Movement

313

7 THE CAUSES OF RE-ANALYSIS

7.1 Role of surface structure and analogies

343

7.2 Independent causation

374

7.3 Conclusion

405

Bibliography (and index of references)

409

Citation index

428