CHAPTER I: SYNTAX AND MODEL-THEORETIC SEMANTICS	1
0. Introduction	1
1. Syntax	1
1.1 Syntax as the definition of a set of phrases	1
1.2 Syntactic motivation	2
1.3 Syntax and speakers' intuitions	3
1.4 Syntax and parsing	4
2. Model-theoretic semantics	5
2.1 Semantics as the definition of a relation between phrases and meanings	5
2.2 Motivation of model-theoretic objects	6
2.3 Semantics and speakers' intuitions	8
2.4 Semantics and parsing	9
3. The relation between syntax and semantics	10
3.1 Compositionality	10
3.2 Semantics opposed to translation	12
3.3 Semantics opposed to logic	13
CHAPTER II: A FRAGMENT OF ENGLISH	15
0. Introduction	15
1. Basic notions of syntax	15
2. Basic notions of quantification	21
2.1 Montague's semantic analysis of noun-phrases	21
2.2 Noun-phrases in object position	27
2.3 Sentences in object position	35
2.4 Wide scope quantification over sentences	37
2.5 Free pronouns and multi-valued functions	41
3. Fragment 1	42
CHAPTER III: QUANTIFIER STORAGE	52
0. Introduction	52

1. Taking quantifier scope out of the syntax	52
1.1 Syntactic problems with the treatment of wide-scope quantification in Fragment 1	52
1.2 Pronouns can do the work of variables	53
1.3 Storage	55
1.4 Fragment 1'	56
1.5 A general definition of storage interpretation rules	64
2. How necessary is wide-scope quantification?	65
2.1 Three uses of wide-scope quantification	65
2.2 Binding without wide-scope quantification	66
2.3 Fragment 1''	68
2.4 Incorporating tell into Fragment 1''	71
2.5 Advantages and disadvantages of binding without wide-scope quantification	74
2.6 De re/de dicto and quantifier scope ambiguities	77
2.7 Conclusion	78
 CHAPTER IV: STORAGE AND WH-PHENOMENA	 79
0. Introduction	79
1. The semantic unity of wh -phenomena	79
1.1 wh -constructions in English	79
1.2 wh -words as binding operators	80
2. A transformational account	83
2.1 Restrictive relatives: Fragment 2	83
2.2 Non-restrictive relatives: Fragment 3	92
2.3 Headless relatives: Fragment 4	95
2.4 wh -questions: Fragment 5	98
3. A non-transformational account	106
3.1 Syntax with distinguished gaps	106
3.2 Fragment 6: Relatives and questions without movement	110
 CHAPTER V: WH-PHENOMENA AND THE THEORY OF GRAMMAR	 117
0. Introduction	117
1. Choosing between transformational and non-transformational accounts	117
1.1 whose : Fragment 7	117
1.2 Pied-piping	121
1.3 The Engdahl bind	122
1.4 What do you need?	123

1.5 Parsing	125
2. The constraints	127
2.1 Free and controlled quantification	127
2.2 wh -priority	128
2.3 How many gaps?	131
2.4 Crossing dependencies	132
2.5 Island constraints	134
2.6 Resumptive pronouns and undistinguished gaps	138
3. Uses of wh -words and complementizers	143
3.1 What are the wh -constructions in other languages?	143
3.2 What wh -phrases can be used in wh -constructions?	145
3.3 Why can that occur both in relatives and \bar{S} ?	147
Appendix: A note on echo questions	148
CHAPTER VI: PRESUPPOSITION AND QUANTIFICATION	151
0. Introduction	151
1. The problems	151
1.1 The Karttunen–Peters problem	151
1.2 Presuppositions associated with generalized quantifiers	152
2. The basic treatment	155
2.1 Paired intensions	155
2.2 Basic notions	156
3. The sentential connectives	158
3.1 Negation	158
3.2 Conjunction	160
3.3 Disjunction	161
3.4 Implication	162
4. Quantifiers	164
4.1 Quantifiers with logical determiners	164
4.2 Quantifiers with non-logical determiners	167
5. Plugs, holes and filters	168
5.1 manage	168
5.2 Propositional attitudes	170
5.3 Factivity and holes	172
CHAPTER VII: GENDER AGREEMENT	175
0. Introduction	175
1. Gender in natural languages	175
1.1 Common nouns and pronouns	175

1.2 Natural and grammatical gender	176
2. Syntactic treatments of gender	177
2.1 Gender agreement and wide-scope quantification	177
2.2 Problems for syntactic treatments	178
3. Semantic properties of gender agreement	180
3.1 Free pronouns	180
3.2 Bound pronouns	181
4. A presuppositional treatment of gender agreement	182
4.1 Free pronouns: Fragment 8	182
4.2 handsome : Fragment 9	186
4.3 Bound pronouns: Fragment 10	188
4.4 he or she	192
Appendix: wh -binding operators	194
