

Contents

List of Figures	xxiii
List of Tables	xxv
List of Boxes	xxviii
List of Contributors	xxix
Part I. Managing Migration in the European Welfare State	1
Herbert Brücker, Gil S. Epstein, Barry McCormick, Gilles Saint-Paul, Alessandra Venturini, and Klaus Zimmermann
1. Immigration and the EU	3
1.1. Introduction	3
1.2. The foreign population in Europe: basic figures	5
1.3. Four phases of European migration	10
1.4. The channels of entry	18
1.5. Stylized facts on the socio-economic characteristics of migrants	21
1.6. The impact of immigration on wages and employment of natives	26
1.7. The impact on the labour market performance of migrants	31
1.8. Conclusions	34
1.9. Appendix	35
2. European Immigration Policy and the Selection of Immigrants	40
2.1. Introduction	40
2.2. The rules of European immigration policies	41
2.3. Selection and self-selection of migrants	49
2.4. How did European immigration policy affect the country of origin mix?	52
2.5. How does national origin affect the skill composition of migrants?	58
2.6. Conclusions	64
3. Welfare State Provision	66
3.1. Basic theory	67
3.2. An empirical analysis: comparing migrants with natives	71
3.3. Implications for the welfare state	77
3.4. Are cross-country differences in migrant selection related to differences in the welfare system?	87
3.5. Conclusions	89

4. Immigration and the Extension of Free Movement to Eastern Europe	91
4.1. Will Eastern enlargement swamp EU labour markets?	93
4.2. What are the consequences for EU labour markets?	103
5. European Attitudes Towards Immigrants	105
5.1. Attitudes towards migrants in the context of economic conduct and performance	105
5.2. Racism and concerns about unemployment and immigration	108
5.3. Determinants of attitudes	113
5.4. Attitudes and migration policy	121
6. Contracted Temporary Migration	124
6.1. Introduction	124
6.2. Implementing contracted temporary migration policy	127
6.3. Policy instruments	131
6.4. The EC and the case of Israel	135
6.5. Conclusions	141
7. Managing European Immigration	143
7.1. Opening EU labour markets	143
7.2. Eastern enlargement	143
7.3. Family unification	144
7.4. Developing a common European asylum and refugee policy	145
7.5. Economic and illegal migration	146
7.6. Towards a co-ordinated policy with countries of origin	150
Comments	152
Michael Burda	152
Riccardo Faini	155
References	159
Part II. Immigration and the US Economy: Labour-Market Impacts, Illegal Entry, and Policy Choices	169
Gordon Hanson, Kenneth Scheve, Matthew Slaughter, and Antonio Spilimbergo
8. Introduction	171

9. Immigration and Immigration Policy in the United States	176
9.1. An overview of US immigration policy	176
9.2. Recent trends in US immigration	178
10. How do Economies Adjust to Immigration Inflows?	185
10.1. How the US economy absorbs immigrants: theoretical framework	186
10.2. How the US economy absorbs immigrants: empirical evidence	192
10.3. How the US economy absorbs immigrants: future prospects	204
11. Illegal Immigration	207
11.1. Background	207
11.2. US policy towards illegal immigration	211
11.3. Factors that contribute to illegal immigration	221
11.4. Policy issues and future prospects	227
12. Fiscal Impacts of Immigration	232
12.1. Use of public resources by immigrants	233
12.2. Welfare magnets	236
12.3. Sharing the costs between central government and local authorities	237
12.4. Overall annual fiscal impact of immigration	243
12.5. Long-term impact of immigration on public finances	245
12.6. Immigration and social security	247
12.7. Summary	248
13. The Political Economy of Immigration Policy	250
13.1. Preferences	251
13.2. Aggregating preferences in the political process	262
13.3. Summary	271
13.4. Appendix	272
14. Conclusion	276
14.1. US immigration policy choices	279
Comments	286
Giuseppe Bertola	286
George Borjas	289
References	303

Final Remarks	310
Olivier Blanchard	310
Dani Rodrik	314
Giovanni Sartori	318
Index	321