

Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
1 The Beginnings of a Complex	1
2 Aycock on Her Family: Facts into Myths	27
3 Incarnating Thought as Baby Boomer, Cold War Soldier, and '60s Radical	33
4 From Minimalism to the Future	39
5 Cresting the Minimalist/Postminimalist Divide	55
6 M.A. Thesis: The Highway Network	59
7 Early Work: Projecting Art into Viewers' Spaces and the World, the Aesthetics of Danger, and the Synergy of 112 Greene Street	65
8 Maze , 1972	77
9 Low Building with Dirt Roof (for Mary) , 1973	87
10 Feminism	95
11 Drawing on Patriarchal Order while Deflecting It	105
12 Architectural Sculpture	109
13 Site Specificity	139
14 Architectural Sculpture as Suprastruction	149
15 Borges's Tear and Aycock's Rip	151
16 The True and the False Project: Embodied and Disembodied Seeing; Phenomenology and Schizophrenia	157
17 " The Beginnings of a Complex . . . ": For Documenta	171
18 Writerly Texts and Schizophrenia	189
19 Virtual Space, Medieval Legacies, and Architectural Sculpture	199
20 From Architectural Sculpture to The Machine That Makes the World	227
21 How to Catch and Manufacture Ghosts	247
22 The Art of Memory in the Age of Artificial Intelligence	283
23 Enmeshed in Wisdom's Nets	295
24 Sophistry and Postmodernism	333
Conclusion	351
Postscript	353
Appendix A Text Accompanying Project Entitled "I Have Tried to Imagine the Kind of City You and I Could Live in as King and Queen"	377
Appendix B Text Accompanying Project Entitled "The City of the Walls"	379
Appendix C Text Accompanying From the Series Entitled How to Catch and Manufacture Ghosts, "Collected Ghost Stories from the Workhouse"	381
Appendix D Text Accompanying The New &amp; Favorite Game of the Universe and the Golden Goose Egg	383
Notes	385
Selected Bibliography	403
Index	415