

Contents

Preface	page ix
Prelude	I
1 Robert Recorde	6
1 The man and his times	6
2 Provision for mathematics education in Recorde's day	8
3 Robert Recorde and mathematics	13
4 Robert Recorde and mathematics education	19
5 Robert Recorde's editors	24
2 Samuel Pepys	29
1 Early Schooling	30
2 University	32
3 The Admiralty and Christ's Hospital Mathematical School	35
4 Pepys, the amateur of science	39
3 Philip Doddridge	45
1 The Puritan Revolution and its aftermath	45
2 The early dissenting academics	47
3 Philip Doddridge and Kibworth Academy	48
4 Religion and mathematics	49
5 Northampton Academy	52
6 Joseph Priestley and the later academics	54
4 Charles Hutton	59
1 Boy and schoolmaster	59
2 The Royal Military Academy, Woolwich	64
3 The Ladies' Diary	69
4 Hutton as patron	72
5 Augustus De Morgan	75
1 Early years and school	75
2 Cambridge	76
3 William Frend	79
4 London University	82
5 The Society for the Diffusion of Useful Knowledge	85

Contents

6	A challenge and a response	87
7	The Spitalfields Mathematical Society	92
8	University College and the London Mathematical Society	94
6	Thomas Tate	97
1	Thomas Tate and the popular tradition	97
2	Elementary education at the commencement of Tate's career	101
3	Tate and teacher education	105
4	Tate's Philosophy of Education	113
5	Retirement and the Newcastle Commission	118
7	James Wilson	123
1	Schooling	123
2	University	125
3	Rugby and the Clarendon Commission	128
4	Elementary geometry	130
5	The Association for the Improvement of Geometrical Teaching	134
6	Science, Clifton College and after	137
8	Charles Godfrey	141
1	School and Rawdon Levett	141
2	University	143
3	Alternatives	144
4	Reform	148
5	Chaos and reaction	152
6	A golden era	155
7	The examination system	160
8	The international scene	163
9	A period of consolidation and stagnation	166
9	Elizabeth Williams	169
1	Primary school education	169
2	Secondary education for girls	172
3	University	176
4	Professional training	179
5	Teaching: the inter-war years	182
6	Research in mathematics education	187
7	Teacher-training	190
8	Three reports	193
9	'Retirement'	202

Contents

Postlude	205
Appendix: a selection of examination papers, syllabuses, etc.	212
Notes	239
Name index	281
Subject index	289