

Contents

Preface	5
Introduction	13
1. Quine, Word and Object, and Naturalism	19
1.1. Quine and His Intellectual Background	20
1.2. Word and Object and Quine's Position	35
1.2.1. The Centrality of Word and Object	36
1.2.2. Our Textual Evidence for Quine's Naturalism	39
1.2.3. The Philosophical Stance	44
1.2.4. Some Critical Voices	49
1.2.5. The Top-Down Approach of Naturalized Metaphysics ..	55
1.3. Naturalism, Science, and Neurath's Boat	59
1.3.1. Starting In the Middle	61
1.3.2. Metaphysical Naturalism	64
1.3.3. Epistemological Naturalism	70
1.3.4. Naturalism and Empiricism	78
2. A Logical Framework for Philosophical Inquiry	86
2.1. Paraphrase, Regimentation, and Analysis	87
2.1.1. The Declarative Sentences of Scientific Philosophy	87
2.1.2. Natural and Artificial Languages	92
2.1.3. The Aims and Claims of Regimentation	96
2.1.4. The Possibility of Pure Analytic Philosophy	100
2.1.5. Quine's Critique of Analyticity	104
2.2. An Austere Canonical Form for the System of the World	111
2.2.1. The Old and the New Logic	113
2.2.2. The Inclusive Language of FOL	117
2.2.3. The Primitive Notation	121
2.2.4. Extensionality and Extensionalism	126
2.2.5. The Bounds of Quinean Logic	129

10 Contents

2.3.	Questions of Ontology, Ideology, and Reference	133
2.3.1.	Logic and the Classification of Philosophical Problems	135
2.3.2.	Ontology: The Values of Bound Variables	139
2.3.3.	Ideology: The Lexicon of Predicates	144
2.3.4.	Naturalized Epistemology and the Roots of Reference	150
3.	The Desert Landscape of the Quinean Universe	153
3.1.	Ontic Decision and the Categories of Being	153
3.1.1.	The Field of Metaphysics	154
3.1.2.	Some Categories of Ontology	158
3.1.3.	Settling Ontological Disputes	161
3.1.4.	Metaphysics: A Pseudo-Discipline?	166
3.1.5.	Quine, Naturalism, and the Metaphysical Turn	171
3.2.	Particulars, Universals, and Propositions	175
3.2.1.	Ontological Building Blocks	176
3.2.2.	Concrete Particulars: Physical Objects	178
3.2.3.	Abstract Particulars: Classes	183
3.2.4.	Universals and the Problem of Generic Identity	188
3.2.5.	Propositions and States of Affairs	197
3.3.	Modalities and Philosophy of Mind	202
3.3.1.	Possibility and Necessity	203
3.3.2.	Quine's Critique of Modal Logic	209
3.3.3.	Intentionality and Propositional Attitudes	217
3.3.4.	Consciousness and Subjectivity	224
4.	The Most General Empirical Science	233
4.1.	Scientific Realism and Ontological Relativity	233
4.1.1.	Defusion of Ontological Commitment	234
4.1.2.	Inscrutability, Relativity, and Structuralism	236
4.1.3.	Realism and Ontology Regained	242
4.2.	The Drive for Evidence vs. the Drive for System	249
4.2.1.	The Opposing Forces of Empiricism and Rationalism	249
4.2.2.	Naturalism vs. Extensionalism	254
4.2.3.	The Different Pursuits of Semantics and Metaphysics	257

4.3. Conclusions: From a Metaphilosophical Point of View	261
4.3.1. The Nature of Philosophical Knowledge	262
4.3.2. Science – A Challenge to Philosophy?	272
4.3.3. Some Further Topics	277
References	280