

CONTENTS

	ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS	5
Part I	THE CONCEPT OF SINN	11
Chapter I	Introductory Remarks	11
Chapter II	The Principle of Bipolarity	22
Section 1	"Bipolarity" in Wittgenstein's early "Notes"	22
2	The Principle of Bipolarity	26
3	"Contingency" and "sense"	27
4	Von Wright's references to the Tractatus	29
5	The sense of "can" in the Principle of Bipolarity	31
5.1	"Can" and "capable"	32
5.2	"Can" and "probable"	33
5.3	"Can", "sometimes" and bipolarity	34
6	"Can" as a logically primitive expression	36
7	The position of the significant propositions	38
8	The paradox resolved	39
9	Russell on "duality"	40
10	Kenny and Anscombe on "bipolarity"	45
11	"Could have been true (false)"	47
12	Truth-conditions and modality	49
13	Sense and negation	51
14	An analogue from the theory of action	52
Chapter III	The Mode of Facts	54
Section 1	The problem	54
2	"It is the case"	54
3	"Could have been the case"	55
4	"The world could have been different from what it is"	58

Section 5	Bipolarity and "independence"	60
6	Bipolarity and verification	62
7	Two senses of "possible"	63
8	A dilemma	68
9	Bipolarity and causal necessity	70
10	A puzzle connected with the notion of a fact	72
Chapter IV	"Logical" possibility	74
Section 1	A thesis	74
2	Kinds of possibility	74
3	The "dimensions" of logical possibility	77
4	A model for the concept of logical possibility	79
5	Logical possibility as "shown"	81
6	Three ways of treating "possible"	82
Chapter V	Wittgenstein and Frege on Sinn : A Comparison	85
Section 1	Some similarities	85
2	Frege on Sinn	86
3	A "logically perfect" language	89
4	Tractatus 2.0211 and 2.0212	90
Part II	THE CONCEPT OF A GEGENSTAND	93
Chapter I	Introductory Remarks	93
Chapter II	Copi on Gegenstände	100
Section 1	4.123	100
2	6.1233	104
3	2.0231	105
4	The "symbolic" evidence	106
5	Subject-predicate elementary propositions	108
6	Wittgenstein's late remarks on Gegenstände	111
7	"Elements" and Gegenstände	114

Section 8	"Bradley's regress"	119
9	Concluding remark on Copi's argument	121
10	A puzzle in 4.221	122
Chapter III	Anscombe on Gegenstände	124
Section 1	The problem	124
2	"Covers"	126
3	Kinds of expressions	128
4	"Representation" and "reproduction"	129
5	4.2211	130
6	"Fully analysed elementary propositions"	132
7	Logical form	135
8	Configuration	139
9	Negation and names	140
10	2.0231, 3.1431, 3.1432, 4.0311	142
11	Concluding remarks	144
Chapter IV	Logically simple predicates	146
Section 1	Types of names and Gegenstände	146
2	Stenius' position	147
3	The Principle of Complementarity	148
4	False elementary propositions	150
5	A note on showing and saying	154
Chapter V	Wittgenstein's earliest views on Gegenstände	158
Section 1	"Socrates is human"	158
2	The "Notes on Logic"	159
3	The "Notes dictated to Moore"	161
4	The Notebooks 1914-1916	164
4a.	The propositional form	164
4b.	Gegenstände	167
	REFERENCES	171