Contents

Preface
Acknowledgments

1. Introduction and Stage Setting
   - Background
   - Studies in the Developmental Psychology Mode
   - Studies in the Sociological Mode
   - Studies in the Anthropological Mode
   - Disciplines and Paradigms
   - Overview of the Book

2. The Daily Lives of Toddlers
   - Young Children's Experiences in the Industrialized World: Examples from the United States and England
   - Time-Use Studies
   - Observations and Interviews
   - Variations by Setting, Race, and Social Class
   - Children’s Experiences in the Majority World: Examples from Kenya
   - Engaging in Work
   - Play, Often while Working
   - Sibling Care and Interaction
   - Heterogeneity, by Space and Time
   - The Role of Fathers
   - Conclusion
3 Cultural–Ecological Theory and Its Implications for Research
Paradigms in the Study of Human Development
Contextualist Theories
  Vygotsky's Theory
  Bronfenbrenner's Theory
  Cultural–Ecological Theory
Implications of Cultural–Ecological Theory for the Study of Cultural Groups
  Cross-Cultural Psychology Versus Cultural Psychology
  The Study of Race/Ethnicity and Social Class
Conclusion

4 Methods
A Focus on Typical Everyday Activities
Activities of Interest
  Lessons
  Work
  Play
  Conversation
Settings
Partners and Roles
The Child as Active Agent
Culture and Historical Time
Methodological Challenges

5 Life in the Cities
Greensboro, North Carolina, United States
Cities in the Northeast of Europe
  Osninsk, Russia
  Tartu, Estonia
  Oulu, Finland
The "Diversity" Societies
  Suwon, South Korea
  Kisumu, Kenya
  Porto Alegre, Brazil
Conclusion

6 Everyday Activities
Focal and Nonfocal Activities
Availability of and Participation in Activities

Play 144
Lessons 145
Conversation 145
Work 146
Summary 147

Engagement in Play (Including Exploration and Entertainment)

Greensboro 149
Northeastern European Cities 151
Cities for Diversity 152
Summary 156

Engagement in Lessons

Greensboro 157
Northeastern European Cities 159
Cities for Diversity 160
Summary 161

Engagement in Conversation

Greensboro 162
Northeastern European Cities 164
Cities for Diversity 166
Summary 168

Engagement in Work

Summary 173

Some Remaining Questions

Analyzing the Data 174
Reasons for Individual Variation 176
Impact of Individual Variation 179
Comparisons with the Time-Use Studies 181

Conclusion 182

7 Settings and Partners

The Settings 186
Activities Within Formal Child-Care Settings 188
Comparing Children's Experiences, Within and Outside of Child Care 189
Comparing Children Attending Child Care with Those Not Attending 195
Summary 197
The Partners in Activities 199
Partners in Play 199
Contents

Partners in Work 203
Partners in Lessons 205
Partners in Conversation 208
Summary 210
The Availability of Partners 211
Conclusion 217

8 Everyday Lives 221

Morning 222
- Andy, in Greensboro 222
- Naomi, in Greensboro 223
- Boris, in Obninsk 224
- Peeter, in Tartu 225
- Jukka, in Oulu 225
- Jonghee, in Suwon 226
- Fredah, in Kisumu 227
- Gabriela, in Porto Alegre 228
- Summary 228

Afternoon 230
- Mike, in Greensboro 230
- Sandra, in Greensboro 231
- Kolya, in Obninsk 233
- Heino, in Tartu 233
- Jonas, in Oulu 234
- Minkyung, in Suwon 235
- Brendah, in Kisumu 236
- Mariana, in Porto Alegre 236
- Summary 237

Early Evening 239
- Cassandra, in Greensboro 239
- Kevin, in Greensboro 239
- Liuba, in Obninsk 241
- Epp, in Tartu 241
- Teija, in Oulu 242
- Juwon, in Suwon 243
- Brandon, in Kisumu 244
- Francisco, in Porto Alegre 245
- Summary 246

Preparing for Sleep 247
- Patty, in Greensboro 247
Contents

Noel, in Greensboro 249
Volodya, in Obninsk 250
Eva, in Tartu 251
Piia, in Oulu 252
Dongki, in Suwon 253
Derrick, in Kisumu 254
Daniel, in Porto Alegre 254
Summary 255
Conclusion 257

9 The Cultural Ecology of Young Children 259
Culture and Human Development 259
Illustrating a Dialectical Approach to Culture and Human Development 264
Cultural and Social-Class Influences on Development 265
Individual Influences on Development 268
The Influence of Time on and in Development 272
Conclusion 274

References 283

Index 303