

Contents

List of Figures	ix
Acknowledgements	xi
Introduction	1
1. In praise of theory — does it matter what we think?	6
Theories of music education; Traditional values; Focus on children; Respecting alternative traditions; It does matter what we think
2. What makes music musical?	19
Sound and music; Responding to expression; Musical structure
3. The arts, mind, and education	35
The value of the arts; The arts as ‘different’; The arts as dreaming; The arts as play; Mastery, imitation and imaginative play; The arts and the intellect; The ultimate value of the arts
4. Musical development: the early years	52
The concept of development; The theoretical basis; Children’s compositions; A first analysis; Towards a model of musical development; Mastery: sensory response and manipulation; Imitation: personal expression and the vernacular
5. Musical development beyond infancy	70
Imaginative play: speculation and the idiomatic; Meta-cognition: symbolic valuing and systematic engagement; Eight developmental modes; Musical development and musical encounter; The evolving theory; Musical development and music education
Interlude: from theory to practice	88

Contents

6. The cultural exclusiveness of music	90
Valuing and labelling; Prejudice and valuing; Musical boundaries; The impediment of new sounds; The impediment of alien expressive character; The impediment of difficult structure; Removing the labels
7. Music education in a pluralist society	102
Transcending cultures; Transformation and reinterpretation; An inter-cultural attitude; The aim of inter-cultural music education; Beyond the classroom
8. Instruction and encounter	120
Classification and framing; Musical instruction; Musical encounters; Encounter and the curriculum; Tacit knowing; Two examples from music education; Two descriptions of encounter
9. Generating a curriculum and assessing students	139
In summary; Pupils evaluate the music curriculum; The problem of progression; Concepts or features? Assessment in the arts; Developing musical criteria; Outside of the timetable
References	156
Index	161

Figures

1. Play and the three elements of music	58
2. Judges estimate the age of children by listening to their compositions	62
3. The sequence of early musical development (Swanwick and Tillman, 1986)	68
4. The spiral of musical development (Swanwick and Tillman, 1986)	76
5. Children's compositions placed by developmental level	81
6. Which lines are the same length? (after Asch, 1951/1958)	93
7. Curriculum classification and framing (after Bernstein, 1971)	123
8. Attitudes to school subjects among 8- to 15-year-olds (Francis, 1987)	142