

Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction	xi
1 The Having of Wonderful Ideas	1
2 The Language and Thought of Piaget, and Some Comments on Learning to Spell	15
3 Either We're Too Early and They Can't Learn It, or We're Too Late and They Know It Already: The Dilemma of "Applying Piaget"	31
4 A Child's-eye View of Knowing	50
5 The Virtues of Not Knowing	64
6 Learning with Breadth and Depth	70
7 Understanding Children's Understanding	83
8 Structures, Continuity, and Other People's Minds	98
9 Making Sure That Everybody Gets Home Safely: Children and the Nuclear Threat	113
10 Teaching as Research	122
References	141
Index	147