

CONTENTS

|                                                                                                                                                    | page |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------|
| Preface                                                                                                                                            | V           |
| Introduction                                                                                                                                       |             |
| Sociolinguistics in the Netherlandic language areaRoeland VAN HOUT                                                                             | 1           |
|                                                                                                                                                |             |
| PART ONE : LANGUAGE AND SOCIAL CLASS                                                                                                               | 43          |
|                                                                                                                                                |             |
| Why do some people speak in a more complicatedway than others ?Jef VAN DEN BROECK                                                          | 45          |
|                                                                                                                                                |             |
| The deficit hypothesis and the social stratificationof mother talkLudo BEHEYDT                                                             | 69          |
|                                                                                                                                                |             |
| Social differences in the acquisition of Netherlandicword formationWilly SMEDTS                                                            | 85          |
|                                                                                                                                                |             |
| Social linguistics and the failure of theoriesPete VAN DE CRAEN                                                                                | 103         |
|                                                                                                                                                |             |
| Pragmatic and conversational aspects of speech infamilies from different social milieusErica HULS                                          | 129         |
|                                                                                                                                                |             |
| The difference hypothesis in the Kerkrade project :measurement of verbal abilities and intelligenceTon VALLEN, Sjef STIJNEN and Toon HAGEN | 169         |
|                                                                                                                                                |             |
| Deficit and difference : a false dichotomy inan educational perspectiveJan STURM                                                           | 193         |

|                                                                                                                            |     |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Language attitudes of future teachers in The NetherlandsFrans DIEDEREN, Han HOS, Henk MUNSTERMANN and Gerrit WEISTRA   | 213 |
| Why do Antwerpians consider Netherlandic language varieties as 'cultured', 'pleasant', 'beautiful', 'rich' ?Kas DEPREZ | 237 |
| Language assimilation or ethnocentrism among Flemish people living in The NetherlandsUus KNOPS                         | 287 |
| Ethnicity in FrieslandPieter VAN DER PLANK                                                                             | 319 |
| Attitudes and experiences of discrimination : the Netherlandic of Moroccan foreign workersPieter MUYSKEN               | 333 |
| List of contributors                                                                                                       | 357 |