

Table of Contents

Preface	9
Demographic change and public finances— the necessity of budget consolidation as part of demographic change	11
1 Introduction	17
Public debt: problem or solution?	17
Measuring consolidations: defining principles	21
The definition of consolidation phases	28
Applying the definition to 23 OECD countries	30
2 Overview of the consolidations	33
The development of debt and consolidation indicators over time	33
The development of expenditure	36
The development of revenues	49
Expenditure-based versus revenue-based consolidations	64
Political and institutional conditions	66
Economic conditions	76
Effects of consolidation	81
3 Country reports	84
Massive improvement: The budget consolidation in Belgium 1993–2002	84

Crisis as opportunity:
The budget consolidation in Sweden 1993–2000	100
The labor market as the key:
The budget consolidation in Denmark 1996–2001	111
Saving a little everywhere:
The budget consolidation in Austria 1995–1997	123
Everything on the test bed:
The budget consolidation in Canada 1992–2000	133
Retrenchment policy in a favorable climate:
The budget consolidation in the USA 1992–2000	146
Total renovation:
The budget consolidation in New Zealand 1992–1995	156
From the ailing patient to a healthy role model?
The budget consolidation in the Netherlands 1996–2001	167
For the sake of the euro:
The budget consolidation in Italy 1998–2001	178
4 Nine countries—nine different paths?
Similarities and differences of budget consolidations	192
Expenditure-based measures	192
Revenue-based measures	201
Measures at an institutional level	207
5 How do overall conditions affect consolidation strategies?	218
Overall economic conditions	219
Overall political and institutional conditions	225
Summary	235
6 The development in Germany	236
Public expenditure	236
Public revenues	244
Public debt and economic conditions	252
Institutional reforms	258
Summary	259

7 Policy recommendations: Promising measures and strategies for implementing consolidations	263
Expenditure-based measures	263
Revenue-based measures	265
Institutional measures	266
“Soft” factors	268
Concluding remarks	269
8 Bibliography	271