JINSHAN GE/SONGS OF GOLD MOUNTAIN

- I have walked to the very ends of the earth* 17
Where is my husband now? 18
My loved one is far away 18
Sons and grandsons are dearest to one's heart 19
I've returned to Hong Kong from America 19
With a mere glance at the fur coat 20
School lets out for the summer 20
I married an emancipated woman 21
In all earnestness, I speak to all my sisters 21
A man's ambition is to conquer the world 22
I'm sixty, this autumn 22
Face haggard, turning yellow and puffy 23
A green mansion is a place of filth and shame 23

HAWAIIAN PLANTATION WORK SONGS

- Dekasegi wa kuru kuru/The laborers keep on coming* 25
Joyaku wa kirerushi/The contract is over and yet 25
Sodo okoshite/If we can get married 25
In the rush at pau hana 25
I hate hole hole work 25
With one woven basket 26
Should I return to Japan? 26

JAPANESE IMMIGRANT POETRY

- Day of vast dreaming* 26
Family treasures 27
With eyes filled with tears 27
Once a Meiji voice 27
Streamers of farewell 27
My island spirit 27
Loud waves up and down 28
Just for a while 28
Eager to become 28

A barren grassland 28

America . . . then 28

Issei's history— 29

- Leaving behind my writing brush and* 538

If the land of the Flowery Flag is occupied by us in turn 539
The low building with three beams merely shelters the body 539
This is a message to those who live here not to worry excessively 539
This place is called an island of immortals 539
My grief, like dense clouds, cannot be dispersed 540
The young children do not yet know worry 540
For one month I was imprisoned; my slippers never moved forward 540
It was four days before the Chongyang Festival 540
My parents are old; my family is poor 541
I went east to Asia; I went west to Europe 541
I raise my brush to write a poem to tell my dear wife 541
The silvery red shirt is half covered with dust 541
Xishi always lives in golden houses 542
Having not yet crossed the Yellow River, my heart is not at peace 542
