Foreword ix

PART I: PAST AND PRESENT ISSUES IN PSYCHOLINGUISTICS

- 1. Controversial Issues in Psycholinguistics 3
Doris Aaronson and R. W. Rieber
 - I. Research Orientations 4
 - II. Phonology 7
 - III. Language and Cognition 9
 - IV. Language Development 13
 - V. Paralinguistic Aspects of Communication 15
 - VI. Applications of Psycholinguistics 17
 - VII. Conclusion 20

- 2. Theoretical and Historical Roots of Psycholinguistic Research 21
R. W. Rieber and Harold Vetter
 - I. Introduction 21
 - II. Language, Thought, and Behavior:
Empiricism Takes a Giant Step and Falls 26
 - III. Language and the Brain: The Brain's the Thing to Catch the Consciousness of the King 34

- IV. Communication and Its Pathology: Can Humpty Dumpty Be Put Back Together Again? 39
- V. Comparative Study of Communication (Or Hands Across the Phylogenetic Scale) 53
- VI. Retrospect and Prospect 57

PART II: RESEARCH ORIENTATIONS

3. A Cognitive Approach to the Study of Language 65

Doris Aaronson

- I. Lexical Coding 66
- II. Contextual Coding 84

4. Ecolinguistics: A Radical Behavior Theory Approach to Language Behavior 109

Kurt Salzinger

- I. Contrasting Assumptions of Different Approaches to Language 109
- II. Why Has It Taken Behavior Theory So Long To Be Productive in Language Studies? 112
- III. What Is the Behavior-Theory Approach to Language? 113
- IV. Does Language "Teaching" Take Place Under Natural Circumstances? 124
- V. What Kind of Experiments Does the Ecolinguistic Approach Lead To? 126

PART III: PHONOLOGY

5. A Survey of Generative Phonology 133

Sanford A. Schane

- I. Basic Assumptions of Generative Phonology 134
- II. Current Controversies in Phonology 147

6. Phonology as Human Behavior 161*William Diver*

- I. Phonetics and Phonology 161
- II. Description, Explanation, and Observability 163
- III. The Identification of Unobservable Units 165
- IV. The Characterization of Unobservable Units 166
- V. Statement of the Problem 167
- VI. Analysis 169
- VII. Conclusion 182

PART IV:LANGUAGE AND COGNITION*7. What Is a Language? 189Charles E. Osgood*

- I. Defining Characteristics of Language Generally 190
- II. Defining Characteristics of Human Languages 200
- III. Nondefining Characteristics of Human Languages 206
- IV. How May Human Languages Have Originated? 212

8. The Role of Grammar in the Use of Language 229*D. Terence Langendoen*

- I. The Task of Linguistics 229
- II. Divisions of the Study of Linguistic Performance 231
- III. The Relation of Performance Grammars to Competence Grammar 232
- IV. Toward Autonomous Performance Grammars 234
- V. From Surface Parsing to Semantic Interpretation in Performance Grammars 236
- VI. Conclusions 238

9. Natural Processing Units of Speech 241*David McNeill*

- I. Segmentation of Spontaneous Speech 242
- II. Summary and Conclusions 260

PART V: LANGUAGE DEVELOPMENT

10. Learning How To Do Things With Words 265

Jerome Bruner

I. 265

II. 266

III. 270

IV. 277

V. 282

11. How To Get From Words to Sentences 285

Michael Maratsos

I. The Study of Early Grammatical Acquisition 287

II. Semantic Structural Relations, Distributional Analysis, and Constituent Structure 297

III. The Acquisition of Morphological Structure 311

IV. Transformational Relations 318

V. General Factors and Determinants of Grammatical Acquisition 333

VI. Later Acquired Knowledge 348

VII. Conclusions 349

PART VI: PARALINGUISTIC ASPECTS OF COMMUNICATION

12. Face-to-Face Interaction 357

Starkey Duncan, Jr.

I. Ethnomethodology 359

II. External-Variable Studies 367

III. Human Ethology 378

IV. Structural Studies 383

V. Elements of a Proposed Conceptual Framework 385

13. Conversational Rhythms 393

Joseph Jaffe, Samuel W. Anderson, and Daniel N. Stern

I. Historical Background 397

II. A Systems Approach to Conversational Rhythms 402

III. Temporal Compensation 412

- IV. Conversational Coupling 414
- V. Some Developmental Issues 419
- VI. Markovian Biological Clocks 425

PART VII:
APPLICATIONS OF PSYCHOLINGUISTICS

- 14. The Naming Act and Its Disruption in Aphasia 435
Davis Howes
- I. Preliminary Remarks on Naming 438
 - II. Naming Disorders in Aphasia 443
 - III. Concluding Remarks 463
- 15. Language In Psychotherapy 471
Donald P. Spence
- I. Surface Structure and Deep Structure in Clinical Listening 472
 - II. Episodic and Semantic Memory 480
 - III. Conversational Implicatures 484
 - IV. The Importance of What Is Not Said 491
- 16. Educational Psycholinguistics:
Defining the Domain 497
Aaron S. Carton and Lawrence V. Castiglione
- I. Some Dimensions of Education 498
 - II. Foreign Language Education 504
 - III. A Psycholinguistics of Reading 513
 - IV. Rhetoric 515
 - V. Conclusion 517
- Author Index 521
- Subject Index 528
