

Contents

List of Contributors	v
Preface	vii
1. Introduction—B. Butterworth	1
Part I. The Conversational Setting and Pragmatic Constraints on Production	19
2. A Taxonomy for Repeating Action Sequences in Natural Conversation—J. SCHENKEIN	21
3. Pragmatic Constraints on Linguistic Production—G. GAZDAR	49
4. The Role of Language Production Processes in the Organisation of Behaviour in Face-to-face Interaction—G. W. BEATTIE	69
Part II. Ways of Investigating Psychological Processes	109
5. The Production of Sentences, Utterances and Speech Acts: Have Computers Anything to Say?—M. J. STEEDMAN and P. N. JOHNSON-LAIRD	111
6. Psychological Mechanisms of Speech Production as Studied Through the Analysis of Simultaneous Translation—F. GOLDMAN-EISLER	143
7. Evidence from Pauses in Speech—B. BUTTERWORTH	155
8. Levels of Processing in Sentence Production—M. F. GARRETT	177
9. Evidence from Aphasia: Isolating the Components of a Production Model—E. M. SAFFRAN, M. F. SCHWARTZ and O. S. M. MARTIN	221
Part III. Prosody, Phonology and Phonetics	243
10. The Production of Prosody—A. CUTLER and S. D. ISARD	245
11. Diachronic Arguments for the Psychological Reality of Abstract Phonology: A Critical review—B. COMRIE	271
12. Syntactic-to-Phonetic Coding—W. E. COOPER	297
Part IV. Articulatory Process	335
13. Phonetic Features and the Physiology of Speech Production—J. S. PERKELL	337
14. Implications for Speech Production of A General Theory of Action—C. A. FOWLER, P. RUBIN, R. E. REMEZ and M. T. TURVEY	373
Part V. Summary	421
15. Some Constraints on Models of Language Production—B. BUTTERWORTH	423
Author Index	461
Subject Index	471