

Contents

Part I

Control Processes in Speech Production .....	1
Chapter 1 Central Processes Involved in Arm Movement Control .....	3
Emilio Bizzi
I Introduction.....	3
II Experiments and Results.....	4
III Conclusion.....	8
References .....	9
Chapter 2 Laryngeal Gestures in Speech Production .....	11
Masayuki Sawashima and Hajime Hirose
I Introduction.....	11
II Basic Laryngeal Gestures .....	11
III Laryngeal Articulatory Adjustments .....	23
IV Conclusion.....	37
References .....	37
Chapter 3 Dynamic Characteristics of Voice Fundamental Frequency in Speech and Singing .....	39
Hiroya Fujisaki
I Introduction.....	39

II	Fundamental Frequency Contour of Isolated Words . . . .	40
III	Fundamental Frequency Contour of Sentences . . . . .	43
IV	Pitch Control in Singing . . . . .	48
	References . . . . .	54

Chapter 4 The Segmental Organization of Speech . . . . . 57
R.D. Kent

I	Introduction . . . . .	57
II	Segments and the Treatment of Time . . . . .	59
III	Models of Segmental Organization in Speech . . . . .	60
IV	The Nature of Articulatory Variability . . . . .	66
V	Segmental Organization in Backward Speech, Developing Speech, and Apraxia of Speech . . . . .	71
VI	Conclusion . . . . .	85
	References . . . . .	86

Chapter 5 Development of Speech Production: Perspectives from Natural and Perturbed Speech . . . . . 91
D. Kimbrough Oller and Peter F. MacNeilage

I	Introduction . . . . .	91
II	Perceptual Factors . . . . .	92
III	Cognitive Factors . . . . .	94
IV	Motor Factors . . . . .	95
V	Speech Motor Development: Theoretical Issues . . . . .	96
VI	A Preliminary Bite Block Study with Two Normal Children . . . . .	97
VII	Conclusion . . . . .	105
VIII	Discussion of Results . . . . .	106
	References . . . . .	107

Chapter 6 Sublexical Units and Suprasegmental Structure in Speech Production Planning . . . . . 109
Stefanie Shattuck-Hufnagel

I	Introduction . . . . .	109
II	Error Evidence on the Nature of Sublexical Computational Units . . . . .	112
III	Role of Suprasegmental Structure in Sublexical Serial Order Processing . . . . .	124
IV	A Serial Ordering Component in the Production Planning Model . . . . .	132
V	Conclusion . . . . .	134
	References . . . . .	135

Chapter 7	A “Dynamic Pattern” Perspective on the Control and Coordination of Movement . . . . .	137
	J.A. Scott Kelso, Betty Tuller, and Katherine S. Harris
	I Introduction . . . . .	137
	II Coordinative Structures as Constraints . . . . .	140
	III Properties of Coordinative Structures . . . . .	142
	IV Rationalizing Coordinative Structures as “Dynamic Patterns” . . . . .	155
	V Concluding Remarks . . . . .	163
	Reference Notes . . . . .	166
	References . . . . .	166

Part II

Production Constraints and Sound Patterns of Language . . . . . 175

Chapter 8	Cross-Linguistic Studies of Speech Production . . . . .	177
	Peter Ladefoged
	References . . . . .	187

Chapter 9	The Origin of Sound Patterns in Vocal Tract Constraints . . . . .	189
	John J. Ohala

	I Introduction . . . . .	189
	II Speech Aerodynamics . . . . .	190
	III Conclusion . . . . .	210
	References . . . . .	212

Chapter 10	Economy of Speech Gestures . . . . .	217
	Björn Lindblom

	I Introduction . . . . .	217
	II Coarticulation . . . . .	220
	III Vowel Reduction . . . . .	226
	IV Speech and General Motor Behavior . . . . .	231
	V Phonological Adaptations . . . . .	234
	VI Summary . . . . .	243
	References . . . . .	243

Chapter 11	Design Features of Speech Sound Systems . . . . .	247
	Kenneth N. Stevens

	I Introduction . . . . .	247
--	--------------------------	-----

II	Examples of Features and Their Articulatory and Acoustic Correlates . . . . .	249
III	Constraints on Sound Patterns Other Than Those Described by Feature-Related Properties . . . . .	256
IV	Concluding Remarks . . . . .	260
	References . . . . .	261

Part III

Two Perspectives . . . . .	263
-----------------------------------	------------

Chapter 12	In Favor of Some Uncommon Approaches to the Study of Speech . . . . .	265
	M. Y. Liberman

I	Introduction—Phonology vs. Phonetics . . . . .	265
II	Intonation: Where a Hybrid Approach is Required . . . . .	267
III	The Relevance of a Hybrid Approach to Segmental Problems . . . . .	270
IV	Conclusion . . . . .	273
	References . . . . .	273

Chapter 13	Some Reflections on Speech Research . . . . .	275
	Franklin S. Cooper

I	Introduction . . . . .	275
II	Retrospective: Speech Research to the 1960s . . . . .	276
III	Prospective: Concepts and Approaches . . . . .	281
	References . . . . .	288

Author Index . . . . .	291
-------------------------------	------------

Subject Index . . . . .	297
--------------------------------	------------

Language Index . . . . .	301
---------------------------------	------------