

Contents

Preface	ix
Acknowledgments	xii
1 An Overview of Five Dimensions of Language	1
Introduction	1
Language Structure	1
Language Acquisition	5
Language and Learning	8
Language Use in Social Contexts	10
Language Variation	11
Finally	14
section one	language structure
2 Native Speaker Abilities	15
Introduction	15
Recognizing Grammatical and Ungrammatical Sentences	16
Recognizing More and Less Grammatical Sentences	18
Recognizing Relations within Sentences	20
Recognizing Relations among Sentences	25
Recognizing Ambiguities	26
Creating Novel Sentences	33
Conclusion	33

3 Components of Language Structure 35

- Introduction* 35
- Semantic Component* 36
- Syntactic Component* 48
- Phonological Component* 52
- The Whole* 58
- Written Language* 62

4 Language Structure: Teachers and Children 65

- Introduction* 65
- Oral Language Examples* 66
- Written Language Examples* 74
- Children's Questions about Talk and Print* 78
- Teachers and (Non)Language* 79
- Learning about Language* 81
- Finally* 86
- Suggested Exercises and Projects* 87
- Suggested Further Reading* 89

section two language acquisition

5 Perspectives on Language Acquisition 90

- Introduction* 90
- Perspectives on Language Acquisition* 96
- In Conclusion* 109

6 Language Acquisition: Developmental Sequence 111

- Introduction* 111
- Preschool Development: A Sketch* 111
- Preschool Development: A Closer Look* 124
- Later Combinatory Speech* 136
- The School Years* 150

7 Language Acquisition:
Interaction of Child and Context 158

- Introduction* 158
- The Child* 163
- The Social Context* 195

8 Language Acquisition: Teachers and Children 218

- Introduction* 218
- The Social Context* 220
- Suggested Projects* 256
- Suggested Further Resources* 258

section three language and cognition

9 Language in Learning 261

- Introduction* 261
- Focusing Attention* 265
- Making Understandings More Precise* 268
- Reinterpreting Past Experience* 269
- Going beyond Present Personal Experience* 270
- The Importance of Interaction in Comprehending and Learning* 272
- Embedded and Disembedded Thinking* 279

10 Language in Learning: Teachers and Children 286

- Introduction* 286
- Children's Curiosity Questioning in School (Do They Do It?)* 287
- The Teacher's Roles* 292
- Classrooms in Tune with Children's Curiosity: Two Examples* 307
- Suggested Projects* 314
- Suggested Further Readings* 317

section four language use in social contexts

11 Communicative Competence 318

- Introduction: Exploring Communicative Competence* 318
- The Purposeful Nature of Language* 323
- Organization of Communication Events* 327
- Variation in Discourse Styles* 335
- Summary* 341
- The Development of Communicative Competence* 342
- In Conclusion* 354

12	Communicative Competence: Teachers and Children	355
	Introduction	355
	Function	356
	Situation	374
	Some Talk about Talking (Or, up on the Soap Box Again)	378
	Suggested Exercises and Projects	386
	Suggested Further Readings and Resources	392

section five language variation

13	Dialect Variation	394
	Regional and Social Dialects	394
	Features of Black English	398
	Myths	408

14	Dialect Variation: Teachers and Children	414
	Introduction	414
	A Broad Look	415
	A Closer Look	417

15	Different Languages: Teachers and Children	435
	Introduction	435
	Two Views	437
	Second-Language Acquisition Reconsidered	445
	The Environment Reconsidered: Classroom Implications	465
	Suggested Projects	470
	Suggested Further Readings and Resources	473

	References	475
--	-------------------	-----

	Index	487
--	--------------	-----