

Table of Contents

Preface	v
1. The Good Second Language Learner: Conceptual Considerations And Empirical Research	1
1.1 Cognitive Style	5
1.2 Cognitive Learning Strategies	16
1.3 Overtly Observable Characteristics of Successful and Unsuccessful Second-Language Learners	32
1.4 Summary and Conclusions	36
2. Mapping The Strategies Used By Second Language Learners	43
2.1 The Pilot Study	44
2.2 A Study of the Use of Second Language Learning Strategies in the Language Laboratory	46
2.3 A Study of the Learning Strategies Used by University Students of German	52
2.3.1 The Second-Language Learning Strategies Questionnaire	54
2.3.1.1 Conceptual Framework	54

2.3.1.2	Comparison between Actual and Hypothetical Evaluations of the Frequency and Usefulness of Second-Language Learning Strategies	74
2.3.1.3	Constructing Six Factors	75
2.3.1.4	Factor Structure	84
2.3.1.5	Intercorrelations among the Predictors	85
2.3.2	Relationships between Perceptions of the Frequency and Usefulness of Second-Language Learning Strategies and Various Achievement Criteria	90
2.3.2.1	Relationship Between Factor Concepts and Various Achievement Criteria	91
2.3.2.2	Achievement Patterns for High-Frequency versus Low-Frequency Users of Certain Learning Strategies	96
2.3.2.3	The Relative Weight of the Second-Learning Strategies Among Various Predictors of Achievement	104
2.4	A Study of the Use of Learning Strategies in High School Second Language Classes	109
2.5	Summary and Conclusions	113
3.	Teaching Students To Acquire Effective Second Language Learning Strategies	121
3.1	The Teachability Issue	121
3.2	Rationale for the Present Study	125
3.3	Research Design	126
3.4	Changes in the Perceptions of the Frequency and Usefulness of Learning Strategies Over the Experimental Period	137

3.5	Differences in Student Achievement Over the Experimental Period for the Three Groups of Learners	141
3.6	Changes in the Perceptions of the Frequency and Usefulness of Learning Strategies and Associated Patterns of Achievement	143
3.6.1	Effect of Learning Strategy Instruction on Three Levels of Achievement	144
3.6.2	Relationship Between Increases or Decreases in Achievement and Changes in the Perception of the Frequency and Usefulness of Learning Strategies	150
3.7	Summary and Conclusions	152
4.	Pedagogical Implications Of The Learning Strategy Factor Concepts Identified As Correlates Of Success In Second Language Learning	159
	Bibliography	175
	Appendices	197
	Index	283