

Contents

Introduction	1
Acknowledgments	6
Note on the text	7
Note on 'class' and 'gender'	8
Note for overseas readers	9
 Part One Teachers' Lives
1 Sheila Goffman and Margaret Blackall		13
Being a teacher	13
Sources and supports	17
Contexts	20
2 Terry Petersen	27
Teaching as a path in life	27
Being a technical teacher	29
Kids, parents, jobs	32
Running the school	34
Education	36
3 Angus Barr	39
The teaching career	39
The practice of teaching	42
The elite private school	46
4 Rosa Marshall	50
To the private sector	50
In the private school	52
The house radical	55

5 Jack Ryan	58
Teaching for survival	58
The teacher and the working-class community		59
How he can do this	62
Problems	65

Part Two Teachers' Work

6 The labour process and division of labour		69
The task and its circumstances	69
The craft of teaching	77
The division of labour	82
Summary	86
7 The curriculum	87
The competitive academic curriculum		87
Sorting people	90
Subordinated curricula	92
New curricula	95
Curriculum dynamics	98
Summary	102
8 Relationships with kids	103
Discipline and control	103
Teaching and the emotions		115
The joy of teaching	125
Summary	127
9 The school as a workplace	128
Supervision and control	128
The political order of the school		130
The gender regime	138
The school's milieu	141
Summary	147

Part Three Teachers' Worlds

10 Being a teacher	151
The sense of self	151
Femininity and masculinity		153

Teaching as a path in life	157
Divisions among teachers	163
Summary	167
11 Teachers' outlooks	168
Concepts and knowledge	168
Images of teaching	172
Perspectives on education	176
Summary	182
12 Teachers' politics and teachers' power	183
Teachers, feminism and gender relations	183
Class inequality	191
Teachers in the process of educational reform	200
Summary	206
Notes	207
Bibliography	209
General	209
Other reports on this research	210
Sources on organic working-class schooling	211
Index	213