

TABLE OF CONTENTS

FOREWORD

VII

I

STRUCTURAL AND EDUCATIONAL DEVELOPMENTS IN THE PRIMARY SCHOOL

1. Aims of Education / by Lamberto Borghi 3
Why we define educational aims. The current debate on educational aims. The theory of "the cultivation of the intellect" and its social motivation. Definition of the aims of the progressive education movement. The relation between thinking and doing. Educational aims in recent theories of cognitive learning. The study of prejudice in its relation to education. The contribution of psychotherapy. Intergroup education. International education. Education for peace. Education and mass culture. Education for leisure. Education through art. Work in education. Language education. Conclusion.
2. Innovations in the Structures of Primary Education /
by Lamberto Borghi 43
Changes in organisation. The impact of educational democratisation on changing school structures. Compensatory education. The debate on compensatory education. The trend towards integration. Continuity between primary and secondary education. The Scuola-Quartiere (School and Neighbourhood) movement. A fresh approach to the educational needs of children from minority groups. Curriculum changes in the light of structural changes in the school. The education of teachers.
3. Progress in Educational Psychology /
by Francesco De Bartolomeis 87
Introduction. Educational psychology and the future of education. Flexibility and planning. Interpersonal relationship and social position. Educational psychology at a turning point. Learning and creativity. Educational psychology and clinical psychology. Laboratory structures. Technology and the future of education. Differential classes and differential treatment. Work as an introduction to technology and the management of social services. Conclusion.

4. Personality, Family and Social Factors of Achievement / by Ornella Andreani Dentici	123
Part one – Small sample: Findings
A. Intellectual operations
B. Linguistic mediations
C. The interactions between children, family and school
Part two – Large sample: Findings
A. Intelligence and achievement tests
B. Personality and socialisation
Drawings of the family and interviews with children and parents. Conclusion.

II

THE CURRICULUM IN THE PRIMARY SCHOOL

5. Mathematics / by Lydia Tornatore	145
Introduction. The rôle of mathematics. Research and planning. The development of new mathematics curricula. Mathematics and creativity. Value of play. Discovery method. Open-ended problems and situations. Mathematics in the curriculum. The teacher's rôle. New directions in mathematics education.
6. Social Studies / by Gastone Tassinari	177
The educational implications of the term "social studies". Current problems and prospects for social studies. Broadening the field of social studies. Subject approach versus coordinated approach. Criticism of the "expanding environment approach". The cognitive aspect of social studies. Social studies and social education.
7. Artistic and Creative Activity / by Antonio Santoni Rugiu	213
Aesthetic activity as play. Creativity, a social necessity of tomorrow? The marginal rôle of art education. Loss of creativity in the ten to twelve age group. The precarious nature of primary education. Art and art education: influences and autonomy. The interaction between art and school. The tendency to syn-aesthetic forms. Art education as a multilateral process. Creative technology. Artistic and scientific creativity. The rôle of emotivity. The formation of aesthetic taste. Contemplation and its relationship to reality. Artistic creativity and the teacher.

BIOGRAPHICAL NOTES	246
--------------------	-----

INDEX	249
-------	-----