

Contents

Preface	ix
Acknowledgments	xi
Part One Aims and principles
1 Who should determine aims?	3
The Plowden Report on aims	5
The school's autonomy in determining aims	7
The determination of aims by experts	11
De-schooling and learner autonomy	14
2 Aims and objectives	19
Our knowledge of others' behaviour	21
Determining aims by a survey of opinions	27
Preparation for life as an aim	29
3 Curricular aims and curricular integration	33
The child-centred alternative	35
Four general principles	38
Curricular integration or differentiation?	41
4 Child-centred education	48
Child-centred education considered	53
Part Two Teaching and learning
5 The concept of teaching	63

6 Learning how to learn and learning by discovery	69
A universal skill?	70
Learning how to learn and autonomy	74
Learning by discovery	78
7 What is the integrated day?	84
A conceptual map	84
The integrated day located	86
An integrated curriculum	88
Team teaching	90
Integration and streaming	93
Some advantages and disadvantages	95
8 Reading and research	98
Reading	100
Meaning	102
Educational decisions	105
Decisions about reading	108
9 Competition in education	113
What is competition?	114
What things can be competed for?	117
What things ought to be competed for?	119
Notes and references	127
Index	130