Contents

The authors viii
Acknowledgements ix
Preface 1

PART 1 THE APPROACH

Introduction 6

1 The writing process 14
1.1 Purpose 14
1.2 Spoken and written language 16
1.3 Readership 18
1.4 Process and product 22
1.5 Genre analysis 26

2 Cultural assumptions about writing 30
2.1 The nature of the problem 30
2.2 Which community does a writer belong to? 31
2.3 Entering a writing community: relating to previous writing 34
2.4 Insiders, outsiders and power relationships 36
2.5 Implications for teaching 38

3 Improving writing skills 40
3.1 Negotiating a writing programme 40
3.2 Making a profile of the learner's abilities and needs 41
3.3 Targeting skills 42
3.4 Teacher-determined options 43
3.5 Using the interests and feelings of the class 45
3.6 Learner input 46
3.7 Establishing the best learning environment in the classroom 47
3.8 Classroom outcomes 48
3.9 Preparing ahead 49
3.10 The follow-up 50

4 Evaluating writing 52
4.1 Two arguments against evaluating writing 53
4.2 Evaluating at the process stage 54
4.3 Evaluation of the product 60
4.4 Summary 61

5 Getting the best out of this book in the classroom 63
5.1 How this book works 63
5.2 Choosing an exercise 64
5.3 Preparing for the lesson 64
5.4 Class structure and strategies 66
5.5 Teacher role 67
5.6 Group work 69
5.7 Teaching a particular exercise 71

PART 2 THE EXERCISES

Introduction 74

Negotiation 76
1 Summarizing collective opinions 76
2 Profiling learner ability and need 77
3 Making an offer 79

Organization 81
4 Linking paragraphs 81
5 Generalization 84
6 The use of illustrative examples 85
7 Inserting additional material 86
8 Ordering material 87
9 Structuring paragraphs 89
10 Sub-headings 90

The sociology of writing 94
Observing cultural constraints 94
11 Using sources 94
12 Entering caveats 96
13 Using counter-arguments 97
14 'I' in formal writing 99
15 Promoting nominal style 100
16 Question or statement? 102

Writing for a purpose 105
17 Writing a forecast 105
18 How does an abstract differ from a summary? 106
19 The written evaluation 108
20 Impersonal writing and probability 109
21 Records and reports 111
22 Report writing 112

Readership awareness 114
23 Taking the reader into account 114
24 Knowing one's reader 116
25 Selection, prominence and ordering 117

Techniques 120
Expressing complex ideas 120
26 Relating one's own findings to primary texts 120
27 Comparison – similarity and difference 121
28 Correspondence and non-correspondence 124
29 Towards the language of proportion 125

Exactness 128
30 Proportion, contrast and expressing an exact meaning 128
31 Revealing attitudes 131
32 Describing spatial relations 133
33 Using technical terms – and making their meanings clear 135
34 Being precise about time 137
35 Using English verbs 140

Writing skills 142
36 Collocation in the verb phrase 142
37 Accounting for facts 143
38 Cohesion 145
39 Collocation in the noun phrase 146
40 Defining by appeal to form and function 148
41 Citing evidence in support of a position 150
42 Punctuation 153
43 Supposing 154
44 Synthesis 156

Bibliography 161