Series editors' preface	xiii
Preface	xv
1 Major issues in second language classroom research	1
The value of second language instruction	4
The context of second language instruction	4
Major issues	6
Learning from instruction	6
Teacher talk	8
Learner behavior	9
Interaction in the classroom	9
Methodological problems	10
Overview of the book	11
2 Classroom research methods	13
Four traditions in research	13
General methodological issues	15
Quantitative and qualitative approaches	15
Classroom observation and instrumentation	17
Dimensions of analysis	21
Reliability and validity of research instruments	23
The traditions in perspective	28
The psychometric approach	28
The interaction analysis approach	31
The discourse analysis approach	40
The ethnographic approach	45
Conclusion	49
3 Teacher talk in second language classrooms	50
Amount and types of teacher talk	50
Functional distribution of teacher talk	52
Modifications in teacher speech	54
Modifications of speech rate, prosody, phonology	64

	Modifications of vocabulary	71
	Modifications of syntax	73
	Modifications of discourse	84
	Summary of modifications	85
	Elaborated descriptions of teacher discourse		86
	Explanations	86
	Conclusion	87
4	Learner behavior in second language classrooms		90
	Language production	91
	Learner production and situational factors		98
	Summary	99
	Input generation	100
	Age and initiating	103
	Social contexts and functions of initiation		103
	Cultural factors and initiation	105
	Summary	105
	Interaction between learners	106
	Classroom organization	107
	Task type	109
	Summary	109
	Learner strategies	109
	Summary	116
	Conclusion	116
5	Teacher and student interaction in second language classrooms	118
	Differential allocation of teacher speech to learners		119
	Choice of language	121
	Functional allocation of language choice		124
	Summary	125
	Questioning behavior	126
	Type of question	126
	Modification of questions	127
	Questioning patterns	129
	Questions in interaction	130
	Summary	131
	Feedback	132
	Feedback as a factor in learning theory		133
	Feedback as error correction	134
	Summary	152
	Conclusion	152

6	Learning outcomes	154
	Teacher input and learner comprehension/production	154
	Rate of speech	154
	Syntactic complexity and repetition	155
	Frequency of input	157
	Summary	163
	Formal language instruction	164
	Focus on form	164
	Explicit grammar instruction	165
	Summary	166
	Learner behavior and learning outcomes	167
	Learner production	167
	Learner initiation and interaction	169
	Learning strategies	170
	Summary	170
	Classroom interaction and learning outcomes	171
	Speech addressed to learners	171
	Language of input	171
	Questions and learner production	172
	Feedback and learning outcomes	175
	Summary	178
	Conclusion	178
7	Directions for research and teaching	180
	Methodological issues	180
	Observation instruments	180
	Design	182
	Statistics and reporting	183
	Theory and second language classrooms	184
	Implications for research and teaching	184
	Presage variables	185
	Context variables	185
	Process variables	189
	The value of second language instruction	191
	References	193

Tables

2.1	Classification of instruments for the analysis of interaction in second language classrooms	18
2.2	Dimensions of analysis	22
2.3	The FLint system	32
2.4	Analytical units employed in L2 discourse analysis	45
2.5	Summary of research sequence	48
3.1	Studies of teacher talk with more than one independent factor	56
3.2	Studies of teacher talk with one independent factor	60
3.3	Studies comparing classroom teacher talk across proficiency levels	64
3.4	Modifications in rate of speech	66
3.5	Modifications in length of utterance	74
3.6	Modifications in degree of subordination	80
3.7	Modifications in distribution of sentence type	83
4.1	Studies of learner behaviors in second language classrooms	92
4.2	Studies of learner strategies	110
4.3	Learning strategy definitions	114
5.1	Quantitative studies of feedback in second language classrooms	138
5.2	Rate of error production and teacher treatment	141
5.3	Features and types of corrective reactions in the model of discourse	146
6.1	Nine grammatical morphemes in ESL teacher speech and learners' production	159
