

CONTENTS

List of Illustrations	vii
Notes on Contributors	xv
Acknowledgements	xviii
Introduction: Embodiments of Power: Building Baroque Cities in Austria and Europe	1
Gary B. Cohen and Franz A.J. Szabo
1. Embodiments of Power? Baroque Architecture in the Former Habsburg Residences of Graz and Innsbruck	9
Mark Hengerer
2. Baroque Comes for the Archbishops: Wolf Dietrich von Raitenau, Johann Ernst Count Thun, and Their Ideals of “Modern Art” and Architecture	43
Roswitha Juffinger
3. Religious Art and the Formation of a Catholic Identity in Baroque Prague	53
Howard Louthan
4. Prague, Wrocław, and Vienna: Center and Periphery in Transformations of Baroque Culture?	80
Jiří Pešek
5. Representation of the Court and Burghers in the Baroque Cities of the High Road: Kraków, Wrocław, and Dresden in a Historical Comparison	97
Jan Harasimowicz

6. From Protestant Fortress to Baroque Apotheosis: Dresden from the Sixteenth to the Eighteenth Century Barbara Marx	120
7. A Tale of Two Cities: Nuremberg and Munich Jeffrey Chipps Smith	164
8. Searching for the New Constantine: Early Modern Rome as a Spanish Imperial City Thomas Dandeleit	191
9. The Zodiac in the Streets: Inscribing “Buon Governo” in Baroque Naples John A. Marino	203
10. A Setting for Royal Authority: The Reshaping of Madrid, Sixteenth–Eighteenth Centuries David Ringrose	230
Bibliography	249

LIST OF ILLUSTRATIONS

- Figure 1.1 Graz, the Landhaus, official meeting place of the estates of Styria. Built 1557–64 by the architect Domenico dell’Allio (photo by Mark Hengerer). 12
- Figure 1.2 Graz, view towards west, copper engraving by Andreas Trost, 1699 14
- Figure 1.3 Graz, view from the south, copper engraving by Matthaeus Merian, 1649. 15
- Figure 1.4 Graz, mausoleum of Ferdinand II, built 1614–33 by the architect Pietro de Pomis (photo by Mark Hengerer). 16
- Figure 1.5 Graz, Webersperg Palace, view of the courtyard from the east, showing early Renaissance elements over older construction (photo by Mark Hengerer). The baroque façade, at 12 Sackstraße, was built ca. 1710, probably inspired by the palaces of Wildenstein and Attems. 19
- Figure 1.6 Graz, Wildenstein Palace on the Paulustorgasse, built about 1602, additional floor and new façade 1702–03 by an unknown craftsman/artist (photo by Mark Hengerer). 20
- Figure 1.7 Graz, Attems Palace on the Schloßbergplatz/Josef-Kai; view to the Schloßberg (castle hill) with Uhrenturm (clocktower) in upper left. Attems Palace was built ca. 1702–15 by Count Ignaz Maria von Attems, integrating parts of an older construction. The Uhrenturm is a remaining part of the citadel (photo by Mark Hengerer). 21
- Figure 1.8 Graz, late baroque burgher building with stone portal, built 1765–70, probably by the architect Joseph Hueber, integrating an older construction; a Brauhaus (brewery) from 1650 to 1900 (photo by Mark Hengerer). 25
- Figure 1.9 Innsbruck, Goldene Dachl (The Golden Roof, referring to the small roof above the oriel), late fifteenth century, built by the Hofbaumeister Niclas Türing; paintings, by Jörg Kölderer, ordered in 1500 (photo by Mark Hengerer). 26

- Figure 1.10 Innsbruck, Hofgasse, looking east; left, part of the Hofburg, the south façade built by Johann Martin Gumpp the Younger (1754–1756); center, the cupola of the south roundel (1766) in the background, where once stood the famous Wappenturm (photo by Mark Hengerer). 27
- Figure 1.11 Innsbruck, Troyer Palace, on the Maria-Theresien-Straße, reshaped by the Baron Troyer about 1680; façade by the architect Johann Martin Gumpp the Elder (photo by Mark Hengerer). 30
- Figure 1.12 Innsbruck, Maria-Theresien-Straße, view towards the north. The Goldene Dachl is visible in the center of the photo, at the head of the street, on the lowest building. Spitalkirche on the left and Stadtturm on the right (photo by Mark Hengerer). 31
- Figure 1.13 Innsbruck, Maria-Theresien-Straße, view towards the south: Triumphal Arch for Emperor Charles VI by the architect Konstantin Walter (1765), decoration by Balthasar Moll (1775). Left, the palace of David Wagner the Younger, Count Sarnthein, finished before 1686, probably by the architect Johann Martin Gumpp the Elder, incorporating older construction (photo by Mark Hengerer). 32
- Figure 1.14 Innsbruck, Gumpphaus, on the Kiebachgasse; originally three older houses, remodeled by the architect Johann Martin Gumpp the Elder, probably early 1680s (photo by Mark Hengerer). 33
- Figure 2.1 Salzburg on the Salzach, view from the northwest, looking upstream. The Festungsberg with its fortification is in center right, with the Mönchsberg on the right center edge. The right bank settlement is on the left edge of the picture (photo by Oskar Anrather). 44
- Figure 2.2 The baroque center of Salzburg. The University Church is in the center left (dark roof and dome), with the north-facing façade on the left. The cathedral with its west-facing façade is above and to the left of it (photo by Oskar Anrather). 48
- Figure 3.1 Jan Jiří Bendl, figures on the façade of the Jesuit church of St. Salvator (Clementinum). 55
- Figure 3.2 Jan Jiří Bendl, figure of St. Peter, from a set of apostles carved for the confessional booths in the Jesuit church of St. Salvator. 56
- Figure 3.3 Jan Tanner, genealogical illustration from his Via sancta, showing St. Wenceslas as progenitor of sixty emperors and kings. 60

Figure 3.4	Jan Jiří Bendl, first free-standing statue of St. Wenceslas, 1662; for the residence of the cathedral provost.	61
Figure 3.5	Jan Jiří Bendl, equestrian statue of St. Wenceslas, formerly in Wenceslas Square.	62
Figure 3.6	St. Vitus, patron of Bohemia, with three lions (Charles Bridge).	70
Figure 3.7	St. Francis Xavier, proclaiming the gospel to a savage who is bowing at his feet. Formerly on the Charles Bridge.	72
Figure 3.8	Repentant rabbi on the Vincent Ferrer monument (Charles Bridge).	73
Figure 3.9	Corner of Old Town Bridge Tower; indecorous couple identified as an earthy Luther and a lusty Katherina von Bora.	74
Figure 4.1	Volprecht van Ouden-Allen, veduta of Prague, 1670s. View downstream to the northeast with the Charles Bridge over the Vltava in the center and Castle Hill to the left.	86
Figure 4.2	Volprecht van Ouden-Allen, veduta of Vienna, 1670s. View from the west with the city fortifications featured in the center, the Hofburg complex within the walls on the right, and the Danube flowing in from left center.	87
Figure 5.1	Kraków, Royal Castle on Wawel Hill (fourteenth–fifteenth centuries), eastern view. From Jan K. Ostrowski, Kraków (Warsaw: Wydawn. Artystyczne i Filmowe, 1992), fig. 66.	99
Figure 5.2:	Kraków, Royal Castle on Wawel Hill, Renaissance courtyard with arcades. From Ostrowski, Kraków , fig. 67.	99
Figure 5.3	Wawel Cathedral, Interior of the Sigismund Chapel (1519–1533). From Ostrowski, Kraków , fig. 89.	100
Figure 5.4	Kraków, Town Square, Cloth Hall (1556–1560) from the southeast. From Ostrowski, Kraków , fig. 100.	101
Figure 5.5	Kraków, Jesuit Church of SS. Peter and Paul (1597–1639), Grodzka Street façade. From Jacek Purchla, Cracovie au coeur de l'Europe (Kraków: Międzynarodowe Centrum Kultury Kraków, 2001), fig. 96.	102
Figure 5.6	Kraków, Missionaries' church in Stradom (1719–1728), façade before a fronton and attic were added above the side sections. From Ostrowski, Kraków , fig. 163.	103
Figure 5.7	Wrocław, St. John the Baptist's Cathedral. Interior of St. Elizabeth's Chapel (1680-1700). From Harasimowicz, ed., Atlas architektury Wrocławia , 2 vols. (Wrocław: Wydawnictwo Dolnośląskie, 1997–1998), vol. 1, fig. 1e.	105
Figure 5.8	Wrocław, Premonstratensian Church of St. Vincent; interior with Baroque altarpieces, paintings, and stalls (second half of the seventeenth century). Painting by Adalbert Woelfl from 1869. From Harasimowicz, Atlas architektury Wrocławia , vol. 1, fig. 17b.	106

- Figure 5.9 Wrocław, the building of the former Kaiserzimmer (after 1701), northern view. From Harasimowicz, Atlas architektury Wrocławia, vol. 1, fig. 115. 107
- Figure 5.10 Wrocław, Jesuit Church of the Holy Name of Jesus (1689–1734), southeastern view. From Harasimowicz, Atlas architektury Wrocławia, vol. 1, fig. 52a. 108
- Figure 5.11 Wrocław, main building of the Jesuit University (1728–1736), Leopoldine Hall, western view. From Harasimowicz, Atlas architektury Wrocławia, vol. 1, fig. 175c. 109
- Figure 5.12 Wrocław, former residence of Prussian kings (1751–1846), southern view. Archival photograph, 1880. From Harasimowicz, Atlas architektury Wrocławia, vol. 1, fig. 114d. 110
- Figure 5.13 Wrocław, Evangelical-Reformed Court Church (evang.-reform. Hofkirche) (1746–1750), northeastern view. From Harasimowicz, Atlas architektury Wrocławia, vol. 1, fig. 55a. 110
- Figure 5.14 Dresden, Palais im Großen Garten (1678–1683), view from the town's side. Archival photograph from 1937. From Fritz Löffler, Das alte Dresden: Geschichte seiner Bauten, 6th ed. (Leipzig: VEB E. A. Seemann, 1982), fig. 130. 111
- Figure 5.15 Dresden, Zwinger (1710–1719), Crown Gate (Kronentor), crowned with four gilded eagles and Polish royal crown. Archival photograph. From Löffler, Dresden, fig. 188. 112
- Figure 5.16 Dresden, Moritzburg Hunting Castle (1723–1736), southern view. Archival photograph from 1933. From Löffler, Dresden, fig. 212. 113
- Figure 5.17 Dresden, Evangelical Holy Cross Church (evang. Kreuzkirche) (1764–1792), southern view. Archival photograph. From Löffler, Dresden, fig. 287. 114
- Figure 6.1 View of Dresden from the north. Engraving. Matthäus Merian, Topographiae Superioris Saxoniae, 1650. 121
- Figure 6.2 Matthäus Daniel Pöppelmann, drawing for the new gunpowder tower. Pen and ink, watercolor, ca. 1714. Dresden, SLUB, Ms. L4/29. 123
- Figure 6.3 Electoral Palace at Dresden, south entrance with Torhaus portal. Engraving, Weck, Der Chur. Fürstlichen... Residentz... Vorstellung, 1680. Dresden, SLUB, Deutsche Fotothek. 125
- Figure 6.4 C. H. Fritzsche, Electoral Palace. View from the Zwinger area to the west wing of the palace, 1709. Watercolor, 1710. Dresden, Kupferstichkabinett. Deutsche Fotothek (Richter). 127
- Figure 6.5 Eastern city gate, the Pirnisches Tor, erected in 1590–91. Engraving. Weck 1680. Dresden, SLUB. Deutsche Fotothek. 129
- Figure 6.6 Antonio Averlino called Filarete, miniature copy of the Capitoline statue of Marcus Aurelius. Bronze, 1465. Dresden, Grünes Gewölbe. Deutsche Fotothek. 130

- Figure 6.7 Hendrik Goltzius, Marcus Curtius. Engraving from the series Roman Heroes, 1586. Illustration taken from Hendrick Goltzius, Hendrik Goltzius 1558–1617: The Complete Engravings, Etchings, Woodcuts, ed. W. L. Strauss (New York: Abaris Books, 1977), 393. 131
- Figure 6.8 Riding Hall, façade. Detail of engraving. Weck 1680. Dresden, SLUB. Deutsche Fotothek. 132
- Figure 6.9 Ground plan of the palace area, with Riding Hall, Shooting Gallery, Comedy House, Palace, and Stables; end of seventeenth century. Dresden, SHStA, Karten und Risse, Schrank VIII, Fach 2, no. 29. 133
- Figure 6.10 Constantin Erich, plan of west bastion system, with seventeenth-century Riding Hall and Shooting Gallery shortened to create supplementary space for the orangerie arcade; 1710. Detail of the west area. Dresden, SHStA, OHMA, P, Cap. I.A. 31. 134
- Figure 6.11 Matthäus Daniel Pöppelmann, ground plan for the Royal Palace. Pen and ink, ca. 1709. Dresden, SLUB, Ms. L4/2. 135
- Figure 6.12 Matthäus Daniel Pöppelmann, plan for the Royal Palace. Bird's-eye view from the east integrating the old palace with four sixteenth-century winding staircases heightened to towers, and arcade gallery leading to the Stables. Pen and ink, watercolor, ca. 1709–10. Dresden, SLUB, Ms. L4/11. 136
- Figure 6.13 Matthäus Daniel Pöppelmann, portal of the Royal Palace, eastern front, 1711. Formerly Dresden, Sächsisches Hauptstaatsarchiv. Deutsche Fotothek. 138
- Figure 6.14 Jean-Joseph Vinache, model for the equestrian statue of August II. Bronze, 1728–30. Dresden, Grünes Gewölbe. Dresden, TU Dresden, Institut für Kunst- und Musikwissenschaft. 140
- Figure 6.15 Bernardo Bellotto, view of Dresden with the Catholic court church as seen from the opposite riverside. Oil, 1747. Dresden, Staatliche Kunstsammlungen, Gemäldegalerie Alte Meister. 141
- Figure 6.16 Zacharias Longuelune, plan for bridgehead buildings for entrance to Altendresden. Pencil, 1727–1732. Dresden, SHStA, OHMA, P, Cap. IV. 37. 142
- Figure 6.17 Carl Heinrich Jacob Fehling, Festival of Saturn staged in the grounds of Plauen by August II in 1719. Engraving. Dresden, Kupferstichkabinett. Deutsche Fotothek. 143
- Figure 6.18 Matthäus Daniel Pöppelmann, Royal Palace, plan for the eastern façade. Pen and ink, watercolor, ca. 1711. Dresden, SLUB, Ms. L4/4. 148

- Figure 6.19 Festival architecture, Carousel of the Four Elements, held in the Zwinger, 1719. Pen and ink, watercolor. Dresden, Kupferstichkabinett. Deutsche Fotothek (Hüttel). 148
- Figure 6.20 Matthäus Daniel Pöppelmann, drawing for a tower portal. Pencil, ca. 1713–14. Dresden, SLUB, Ms. L4/24. 149
- Figure 6.21 Zacharias Longuelune, ground plan for Royal Palace and museum galleries. Pen and ink, watercolor, ca. 1730. Dresden, SHStA, OHMA, P, Cap. I.A. 60a. 151
- Figure 6.22 After Zacharias Longuelune, ground plan of palace area from the western fortification to the New Market with Frauenkirche. Colored graphite, ca. 1730. Dresden, SHStA, OHMA, P, Cap. I.A. 34. 152
- Figure 7.1 Symbolic representation of Nuremberg's government, colored drawing, late sixteenth century. Nuremberg, Stadtbibliothek, Abt. Sammlungen. 166
- Figure 7.2 Wenzel Hollar, plan of Nuremberg, engraving, c. 1657. Nuremberg, Germanisches Nationalmuseum. (Letters and numbers added by author.) 169
- Figure 7.3 Nuremberg, interior of St. Egidienkirche, engraving/etching. From Christoph Melchior Roth, Abbildungen aller Kirchen, Klöster, und Kapellen in Nürnberg (Nuremberg, 1756). 170
- Figure 7.4 Johann Ulrich Kraus (after Johann Andreas Graff), view of the interior of St. Sebaldus, engraving, 1693. Nuremberg, Germanisches Nationalmuseum, Sp. 9067. 171
- Figure 7.5 Johann Troschel (after Lorenz Strauch), West façade of the Nuremberg Rathaus, engraving, 1621. Nuremberg, Germanisches Nationalmuseum, Sp. 1528. 172
- Figure 7.6 Jakob Wolff the Elder, Pellerhaus, 1602–07. Photo 1935. Nuremberg, Hochbauamt-Bildstelle. 173
- Figure 7.7 Matthäus Merian the Elder, plan of Munich (modified to show early eighteenth-century appearance). From Wolfgang Braunfels, Die Kunst im Heiligen Römischen Reich (Munich: C.H. Beck, 1979). I, fig. 145. 176
- Figure 7.8 Johann Smissek, St. Michael's Church and the Jesuit College in Munich, etching, ca. 1644–50. Munich, Stadtmuseum. 178
- Figure 7.9 Interior, St. Michael's Church in Munich, 1583–97. 179
- Figure 7.10 Hubert Gerhard and others, Virgin and Child of the Apocalypse Column, Munich, 1593 and ca. 1638, woodcut by Marc Anton Hannas (after Jacob Custos), after 1641. Munich, Stadtmuseum. 181
- Figure 7.11 Michael Wening, Residenz, St. Kajetan's Church (top center), and View of Munich from the Northeast, ca. 1700, engraving, after Wolfgang Braunfels, Die Kunst im Heiligen Römischen Reich. I, fig. 165. 182

Figure 7.12	West façade of the Residenz in Munich, completed by 1619.	182
Figure 7.13	Plan of the first upper floor of the Residenz in Munich, after Samuel John Klingensmith, The Utility of Splendor , Plan B.	183
Figure 7.14	Garden façade, Schleissheim Palace, 1701–1848.	185
Figure 8.1	Old St. Peter's and Vatican Palace ca. 1533. M. van Heemskerck: Inventio Urbis , figure 9.	192
Figure 8.2	Statue of King Philip IV of Spain in Santa Maria Maggiore, Rome, ca. 1700.	194
Figure 8.3	Giulio Romano and others, The Donation of Constantine , Room of Constantine, Vatican palace.	196
Figure 8.4	Antonio Tempesta, Detail of the Vatican , 1593, Frutaz, Piante di Roma , II, pl. 269.	199
Figure 9.1	Antonio Bulifon, The Most Faithful city of Naples (1685). The parade route from the Castel Nuovo to S. Giovanni a Mare follows the first main street inside the city wall east of the Castel Nuovo along the shore. (Route marked by black and white dotted line.)	206
Figure 9.2	Felicity, the first of the twelve virtues of viceregal government. Francesco Orilia, Lo Zodiaco, over, idea di perfettione di prencipi (Naples, 1630). (Orilia, 13).	211
Figure 9.3	Ephemeral arch constructed in Piazza della Sellaria (Orilia, 362).	213
Figure 9.4	Comestible arch of ham, salami, and cheese constructed at the Porta del Caputo (Orilia, 456).	214
Figure 9.5	Vigilance, the last of the twelve virtues of viceregal government (Orilia, 463).	216
Figure 9.6	Viceroy Duke of Alba crushing two Furies (Orilia, 291).	217
Figure 9.7	Sebeto, the mythical god of the river running under the city of Naples (Orilia, 392).	219
Figure 9.8	Partenope, mythical Siren founder of the city of Naples (Orilia, 344).	220
Figure 10.1	Approaches to Madrid and the Alcazar Palace, early seventeenth century.	231
Figure 10.2	Paseo del Prado and Plaza de Cibeles, late eighteenth century.	231
Figure 10.3	Madrid, ca. 1610, with axis for royal processions and mid-sixteenth-century limits.	234
Figure 10.4	Entrance of Charles of England, 1623.	235
Figure 10.5	The Buen Retiro Palace, ca. 1640.	236
Figure 10.6	Madrid, Map of 1771 (A), with ceremonial route and royal structures. Top left: Royal Palace; top center: Cibeles and Alcalá; top right: Buen Retiro Palace; bottom left: Plaza Mayor; bottom center: Casa de Correos; bottom right: Real Aduana.	239

- Figure 10.7 Madrid, Map of 1771 (B). Top center: Estanque in Retiro Gardens; right side: project of Paseo del Prado; top left: Plaza de Cibeles looking south; bottom left: Bridge to Casa del Campo gardens; bottom center: Paseo de Delicias. 241
- Figure 10.8 Madrid, Map of 1771 (C). Top left: Puerta de San Vicente; top right: Palacio de Benevente and Cibeles; bottom left: Puerta de Embajadores; bottom center: Prado Museum; bottom right: Entrance to Royal Botanical Gardens. 243