

Contents

Acknowledgments / xi

Introduction / 3

1 / A language of real characters:

the intellectual background / 7

The first language of mankind / 9

✗ 2 / From secret to universal writing / 15

Languages, language, and real studies / 27

✗ 3 / Early schemes for a common writing / 44

3 / The philosophical language / 65

Descartes and Mersenne / 65

✗ 4 / The universal character as a mirror of reality / 72

✗ 5 / John Wilkins's 'real character and philosophical language' / 98

A brief look at Leibniz / 107

4 / Ideal languages in the imaginary voyage / 112

5 / The eighteenth century:

origins of language, general grammar, and a universal language / 139

6 / Pasigraphy in the 1790s / 150

7 / Signs and thought / 161

8 / The Idéologues and the perfect language / 183

Appendix A

Gesture as a form of universal language / 211

Appendix B

Checklist of schemes of universal writing and language in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries / 224

Notes / 233

Bibliography / 270

Index / 292

Illustrations

PLATE 1

- Francis Lodwick A Common Writing London 1647
28–9: the Gospel according to St John, chapter 1,
X in Lodwick's universal character / 60

PLATE 2

- George Dalgarno Ars signorum London 1661
X 95: first page of the Latin-universal character lexicon / 89

PLATE 3

- George Dalgarno Ars signorum London 1661
X 118–9: first chapter of Genesis in Dalgarno's universal character / 90

PLATE 4

- John Wilkins *Essay towards a Real Character and a
Philosophical Language*
London 1668, 387: description of the real character / 92

PLATE 5

- John Wilkins *Essay towards a Real Character and a
Philosophical Language*
London 1668, 395: the Lord's Prayer written in the real character / 93

PLATE 6

John Wilkins Essay towards a Real Character and a Philosophical Language

London 1668, 415: attribution of sounds in Wilkins's philosophical language to various categories of ideas / 94

PLATE 7

George Psalmanazar An Historical and Geographical Description of Formosa

London 1704, facing 267: the Formosan alphabet / 127

PLATE 8

Joseph de Maimieux Pasigraphie, ou premiers élémens du nouvel art-science

Paris 1797: title page / 154

PLATE 9

Joseph de Maimieux Pasigraphie, ou premiers élémens du nouvel art-science

Paris 1797, 4–5: index of link words and phrases / 158–9

PLATE 10

John Bulwer Chirologia, or The Naturall Language of the Hand

London 1644, 151: gestural signs and their meaning / 213