

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction	i
1. The Epic
La Chanson de Roland as Beginning and End: Some Preliminary Background	17
Ganelon: the Poetics of Guile and Greed	22
Le Charroi de Nîmes : Language and Social Class	38
Raoul de Cambrai : Violence Turned Societally Inward and the Need for Negotiation	47
Conclusion: the Economic Overview	61
2. The Romance of Chrétien de Troyes
Introduction	73
The Economic Base and Inner-Class Tension	76
Towns and the Bourgeoisie	83
Monarchy	88
A Crisis of Credit: Debt and Redemption in Yvain	91
Urban Time and the Economy of the Spirit	96
Conclusion	103

3. Jean de Meun's Roman de la Rose
Introduction	113
An Overview of the Poem	114
Le Roman de la Rose and the Fabliaux:
Social Origins and Audience	117
Attitudes Toward Wealth	119
The Economics of Moral Degeneration:
Language Devalued	124
Conclusion	133
4. Gift-Giving and Community
Introduction	137
Gift-Giving in Feudal Society	138
Largesce and Mesure in Chrétien's Romance	148
Le Roman de la Rose	150
5. The Overview: Economy, Community, and Language	165
Bibliography	177
Index	195