
Contents

Acknowledgements	v
Introduction	1
Notes	18
1 Definitions of the bestseller	19
Origins of the bestseller system	20
Defined by bestseller lists	25
Bestseller: Numbers or readership	29
Bestseller: A genre?	34
Notes	49
2 The institutional and cultural network of the bestseller system	51
French reception of the bestseller	52
Production, sale, and distribution of bestsellers	58
Politics of translations	69
Notes	72
3 The sentimental novel: A history of popular women writers in the United States and France	73
Nineteenth-century women writers in the United States and France	76
Critical reception of women writers	82
The United States: The domestic novel or the cult of domesticity	88
The sentimental novel in France	92
Notes	102

4 The boundary between the romance and the bestseller: Harlequins, historical novels, and family sagas	103
The case of Harlequin	106
The historical novel	111
The family saga	114
French historical novels	124
Notes	133
5 The dilemma of marriage	134
Bestsellers of the 1960s	138
The 1970s	144
The 1980s	146
French bestsellers	150
6 Superwoman: The “new woman” of the 1980s	157
The Eighties: Social and political condition of women in the United States and France	157
Career-woman novels: Superwoman in the United States	163
The French novels	177
 Conclusion	 187
Bibliography	191
Index	201