

Table of Contents

List of Figures . . . . .	ix
Preface . . . . .	xi
Introduction . . . . .	1
Chapter I
Roles in and Types of Institutions in Higher Education . . . . .	5
The Faculty . . . . .	13
The Administrator . . . . .	19
Summary . . . . .	31
Chapter II
Academic Freedom in Situation . . . . .	33
Chapter III
Characteristics of a Good Student . . . . .	45
Chapter IV
Characteristics of Good Teaching . . . . .	71
The Creative Environment . . . . .	79
Summary . . . . .	84
Chapter V
The Evaluation Process . . . . .	87
Who Benefits from the Formal Educational System as it now Exists? . . . . .	90
Who Should Pay the Major Cost of that System? . . . . .	94
What is the Proper Role, if any, of the Federal Government? . . . . .	97
What Degree of Emphasis -- Money, Talent, Other Support -- Should be Given to what Types of Institutions of Higher Education? Who Should Receive Formal Post-secondary Education? . . . . .	100
What Role, if any, Should Institutions of Higher Education have in Determining the Needs of Society? What Role, if any, Should Insti- tutions of Higher Education have in Meeting the Needs of Society? . . . . .	106

Table of Contents (cont.)

To What Extent Should Institutions of Higher Education be Autonomous? . . . . .	110
Is the Student a Consumer of or a Participant in the Determination of Educational Policies, Programs, and Objectives? . . . . .	114
What are the Proper Roles of Faculty Members and Administrators in the Determination of Educational Policies, Programs, and Objectives? . . . . .	117
Summary . . . . .	119

Chapter VI

The Institution and the Individual . . . . .	121
Faculty Development . . . . .	121
Theories of Administration and Organization . . . . .	128
Governance . . . . .	140
Collective Bargaining . . . . .	155
Research and Service Versus Research or Service . . . . .	165

Chapter VII

Toward 2000 . . . . .	183
References . . . . .	201
Resource Index . . . . .	207