

Contents

PART 1: INTRODUCTION

- Chapter 1 Feminist Perspectives on Science: Is Reconceptualization Possible? 3

PART 2: THE BIOLOGY CURRICULUM

- Chapter 2 Transforming Introductory Biology 23
- Chapter 3 Biology of Reproduction and Reproductive Technologies 38
- Chapter 4 Teaching About Sexuality and Human Reproduction: Attempts to Include Multiple Perspectives 52
- Chapter 5 Women in Science: History, Careers, and Forces for Change 62

PART 3: WOMEN'S STUDIES COURSES BASED ON BIOLOGY AND HEALTH

- Chapter 6 Women and Their Bodies in Health and Disease 77
- Chapter 7 Biology and Psychology of Women 90

PART 4: CHANGING PEDAGOGICAL METHODS

- Chapter 8 Using Feminist Pedagogical Methods in the Science Classroom 103
- Chapter 9 Adapting Courses for Use Outside of the Traditional Classroom Setting 120

PART 5: CONCLUSION

- Chapter 10 Positive Rewards from Teaching Science and Health from a Feminist Perspective 135
- Appendix: Course Syllabi 141
- Author Index 233
- Subject Index 236
- About the Author 246