

Table of contents

Introduction	VII
Irina A. Sekerina, Eva M. Fernández and Harald Clahsen
List of contributors	XVII
Behavioral methods for investigating morphological and syntactic processing in children	1
Harald Clahsen
Event-related brain potentials as a window to children's language processing: From syllables to sentences	29
Claudia Männel and Angela D. Friederici
Using eye movements as a developmental measure within psycholinguistics	73
John C. Trueswell
Looking while listening: Using eye movements to monitor spoken language comprehension by infants and young children	97
Anne Fernald, Renate Zangl, Ana Luz Portillo and Virginia A. Marchman
What lurks beneath: Syntactic priming during language comprehension in preschoolers (and adults)	137
Jesse Snedeker and Malathi Thothathiri
Language acquisition research. A peek at the past: A glimpse into the future	169
Helen Smith Cairns
Index	187