

. . . . Contents

Foreword, by S. E. Gontarski ix
Preface and Acknowledgments xi
Abbreviations xv

Introduction: The Burden of Tradition I

The Liberation of Art 9

- 1 Woman, the Platonic Ideal: Tuda and "Marta" 17
Before Marta Abba, the Divine Eleonora Duse: The Second Mrs. Tanqueray and As Before, Better than Before 17
The Virgin Marta: Diana and Tuda and The Wives' Friend 24
Diana and Tuda: The Play 32
The Wives' Friend: The History 45
The Wives' Friend: The Play 50
- 2 Woman, the Earth Mother: La Spera and Sara 61
The New Colony: The History 63
The New Colony: The Play 68
Lazarus: The History 78
Lazarus: The Play 81
- 3 Woman's Refusal of Roles: L'Ignota 89
Come tu mi vuoi: The Story 89
As You Desire Me: The Play 101
- 4 Woman as Creator 110
Letters From Berlin and Paris: An Effort at Sublimation 110
Artistic Creation/Procreation: The Mountain Giants 123
The Fable of the Changeling 129

5 Woman as Actress 135

The Correspondence of 1931 135

A Necessary Prologue: The Monologue "Sgombero" 141

The Correspondence of 1932: Mussolini, the Ultimate
Padre-Padrone 144

Pirandello's Personal Testament: When One Is Someone 147

Re-Creating Life: To Find Oneself 151

6 The Disruption of Form: "Non conclude" 169

Non si sa come (No One Knows How) 169

An Afterthought 189

Notes 193

Bibliography 215

Index 223