CHAPTER 1

The functional approach to language and the typological approach to grammar 1

- 1.1 Perspective 1
 - 1.1.1 Antecedence 1
 - 1.1.2 Structuralism 4
 - 1.1.3 Direct descent 7
- 1.2 The role of grammar in human information processing 7
 - 1.2.1 The cognitive representation system 7
 - 1.2.2 Peripheral sensory-motor codes 11
 - 1.2.3 The grammatical code 11
- 1.3 Grammatical vs. pre-grammatical communication 13
- 1.4 The limits of conscious reflection 16
- 1.5 The theme-and-variation approach to syntax 18
- 1.6 The typological approach to grammar: Functional domains, cross-language diversity and universals 20
 - 1.6.1 The functional basis of grammatical typology 20
 - 1.6.2 The diachronic underpinnings of grammatical typology 23
 - 1.6.3 Typology and universals of grammar 24
 - 1.6.4 Ranges of typological variation 25
- 1.7 Generativity and variation 26
 - 1.7.1 The bounds of rule-governedness 26
 - 1.7.2 Categories, continua and prototypes 28
- 1.8 Iconicity, naturalness and markedness 34
 - 1.8.1 Iconicity vs. arbitrariness 34
 - 1.8.2 Markedness, complexity and frequency 37
- 1.9 On the use, and uses, of this book 41

CHAPTER 2

The lexicon: Words and morphemes 43

- 2.1 Preliminaries 43
 - 2.1.1 Recapitulation: Meaning, information, discourse 43
 - 2.1.2 Semantic features and semantic fields 43

- 2.2 Lexical vs. grammatical vocabulary 44
 - 2.2.1 Words and morphemes 44
 - 2.2.2 Morphemic status, morphotactics, and writing systems 48
- 2.3 Major lexical word-classes 49
 - 2.3.1 Membership criteria 49
 - 2.3.2 Pragmatic limits of semantic taxonomies 50
 - 2.3.3 Semantic criteria: An overview 50
 - 2.3.4 Morphotactics: Affixes, clitics and inflections 54
- 2.4 Nouns 55
 - 2.4.1 Semantic characterization 55
 - 2.4.2 Syntactic characteristics 59
 - 2.4.3 Morphological characteristics 60
- 2.5 Verbs 69
 - 2.5.1 Semantic characterization 69
 - 2.5.2 Syntactic characterization 69
 - 2.5.3 Morphological characterization 69
- 2.6 Adjectives 81
 - 2.6.1 Semantic characterization 81
 - 2.6.2 Syntactic characterization 84
 - 2.6.3 Morphological characteristics 85
- 2.7 Adverbs 87
 - 2.7.1 Preamble 87
 - 2.7.2 Semantic classification 88
- 2.8 Minor word classes 94
 - 2.8.1 Preamble 94
 - 2.8.2 Adpositions 95
 - 2.8.3 Determiners 97
 - 2.8.4 Independent subject and object pronouns 99
 - 2.8.5 Inter-clausal connectives 99
 - 2.8.6 Quantifiers, numerals and ordinals 100
 - 2.8.7 Auxiliary verbs 102
 - 2.8.8 Interjections 102

CHAPTER 3

Simple verbal clauses and argument structure 105

- 3.1 Preliminaries 105
 - 3.1.1 Orientation 105
 - 3.1.2 States, events, and actions 106
 - 3.1.3 Semantic roles 106
 - 3.1.4 Grammatical relations 108
 - 3.1.5 Transitivity 109
- 3.2 Phrase structure and tree diagrams 110
 - 3.2.1 What the formalism is good for 110
 - 3.2.2 What the formalism is not good for 114

- 3.3 The classification of verbs and simple clauses 118
 - 3.3.1 Dummy-subject verbs 118
 - 3.3.2 Copular clauses and copular verbs 120
 - 3.3.3 Simple intransitive verbs 125
 - 3.3.4 Simple transitive verbs 126
 - 3.3.5 Intransitive verbs with an indirect object 136
 - 3.3.6 Bi-transitive verbs 141
 - 3.3.7 Verbs with clausal (verbal) complements 149
 - 3.3.8 Multiple membership in verb classes 160
- 3.4 Optional participant case-roles 161
- 3.5 Distributed lexical verbs 162
 - 3.5.1 Complex predicates distributed across the clause 163
 - 3.5.2 Multiple stems distributed across the verbal word 167

CHAPTER 4

Grammatical relations and case-marking systems 173

- 4.1 Orientation 173
- 4.2 Semantic roles vs. grammatical relations: The dissociation test 173
- 4.3 Formal properties of grammatical relations 175
 - 4.3.1 Overt coding properties 175
 - 4.3.2 Behavior-and-control properties 177
 - 4.3.3 Universality and variation: The prototype approach to grammatical relations 194
 - 4.3.4 Functional correlates of grammatical relations 195
- 4.4 The typology of case-marking systems 197
 - 4.4.1 Preliminaries 197
 - 4.4.2 Topicality and grammatical relations 198
 - 4.4.3 Major types of case-marking systems 200
- 4.5 The typology of direct objects 219
 - 4.5.1 Overt coding properties: Degree of grammaticalization 219
 - 4.5.2 Morphological promotion-to-DO and the topicality hierarchy 220
 - 4.5.3 Promotion to DO and verb-coding of semantic roles 225
- 4.6 Serial verbs, case-marking and grammatical relations 227
- 4.7 Verb-coding of case-roles 230

CHAPTER 5

Word order 233

- 5.1 Preliminaries 233
- 5.2 Scalarity, consistency and purity of types 234
- 5.3 Rigid word-order types 235
 - 5.3.1 Rigid word-order in simple (main) clauses 235
 - 5.3.2 Rigid word-order in the noun phrase 242

- 5.4 Mixed word-orders 246
 - 5.4.1 Mixed clausal order 246
 - 5.4.2 Mixed word-order in the NP 254
- 5.5 Word-order and bound morphology 260
 - 5.5.1 Reorientation 260
 - 5.5.2 Case-marking morphology on nouns or NPs 260
 - 5.5.3 Tense-aspect-modal morphology 263
 - 5.5.4 Negation morphemes 267
- 5.6 Flexible word-order 270
 - 5.6.1 Reorientation 270
 - 5.6.2 Types of flexible-order languages 271
 - 5.6.3 The pragmatics of word-order flexibility 277
- 5.7 So-called non-configurationality 279

CHAPTER 6

- Tense, aspect and modality I: Functional organization 285
 - 6.1 Introduction 285
 - 6.2 Tense 285
 - 6.3 Aspect 287
 - 6.3.1 Perfectivity: boundedness and duration 287
 - 6.3.2 Perfective vs. imperfective 288
 - 6.3.3 The perfect 293
 - 6.3.4 The immediate aspect: Remote vs. vivid 297
 - 6.4 Modality and mood 300
 - 6.4.1 Preamble: Propositional modalities 300
 - 6.4.2 Epistemic modalities 301
 - 6.4.3 The distribution of modality in grammar 302
 - 6.4.4 Irrealis and the subjunctive mood⁸ 312
 - 6.4.5 Evidentiality and epistemic space 326
 - 6.5 Communicative and cognitive aspects of tense, aspect and modality 329
 - 6.5.1 Markedness 329
 - 6.5.2 Frequency text-distribution 330
 - 6.5.3 Cognitive considerations 332
 - 6.5.4 The discourse correlates of aspect: Perfective/imperfective vs. simultaneous/sequential 333

CHAPTER 7

- Tense, aspect and modality II: Typological organization 337
 - 7.1 Reorientation 337
 - 7.2 The Creole prototype 338
 - 7.3 T-A-M auxiliaries and their grammaticalization 340
 - 7.4 The expansion of tense 341

- 7.5 The scope-of-assertion aspect 343
- 7.6 Perfective/imperfective-based systems 345
- 7.7 A four-way dichotomy 348
- 7.8 The conflation of perfect, durative and immediate 352
- 7.9 The grammaticalization of modality 355
 - 7.9.1 Marking presupposed vs. asserted information 355
 - 7.9.2 Split vs. uniform marking of irrealis 358
 - 7.9.3 Unified vs. split subjunctive 360
 - 7.9.4 The use of perfective markers in subjunctive forms 362
- 7.10 The grammaticalization of evidentiality 366
- 7.11 Primary vs. secondary grammaticalization of T-A-M 366

CHAPTER 8

Negation 369

- 8.1 The multiple facets of negation 369
 - 8.1.1 Negation and propositional logic 369
 - 8.1.2 Negation and subjective certainty 370
 - 8.1.3 The communicative pragmatics of negation 370
 - 8.1.4 Negation as a speech-act 372
- 8.2 The cognitive status of negation 372
 - 8.2.1 Change vs. stasis 372
 - 8.2.2 The ontology of negative events 373
 - 8.2.3 The ontology of negative states 375
- 8.3 Negation and social interaction 376
- 8.4 The scope of negation 378
 - 8.4.1 Presupposition, assertion and negation 378
 - 8.4.2 Negation and contrastive focus 380
 - 8.4.3 Negation and optional constituents 381
- 8.5 The morpho-syntactic typology of VP negation 382
 - 8.5.1 Grammaticalization of negation markers 382
 - 8.5.2 De-verbal negation markers 382
 - 8.5.3 De-nominal negation markers 383
 - 8.5.4 Negation and word-order 385
- 8.6 Further topics in the syntax of negation 386
 - 8.6.1 The coding of negative scope 386
 - 8.6.2 Diverse negation markers across grammatical contexts 388
 - 8.6.3 Emphatic or NP negation 392
 - 8.6.4 Negation in main vs. complement clauses 393
 - 8.6.5 Depth of embedding: Syntactic, morphological, and inherent ('lexical') negation 395
 - 8.6.6 Negative polarity and levels of negation 396

Referential coherence I: Pronouns and grammatical agreement 399

- 9.1 Introduction 399
- 9.2 The semantic organization of pronominal paradigms 400
 - 9.2.1 Pronominal classificatory features 400
 - 9.2.2 Initial selected examples 401
- 9.3 Pronoun and grammatical agreement 407
 - 9.3.1 Optional clitic anaphoric pronouns (Ute) 407
 - 9.3.2 Pronominal agreement on the verb 408
- 9.4 The implicational hierarchies of pronominal agreement 416
- 9.5 Foundations of the grammar anaphoric reference 417
 - 9.5.1 Preamble 417
 - 9.5.2 Anaphoric zero vs. unstressed anaphoric pronouns 417
 - 9.5.3 Anaphoric vs. stressed independent pronouns 418
 - 9.5.4 Pronouns and zero anaphors vs. definite full-NPs 419
- 9.6 Explaining the rise of pronominal agreement 420
- 9.7 Head-modifier agreement in the noun phrase 426
- 9.8 Multiple functions of grammatical agreement 430
 - 9.8.1 Verb-type and transitivity (Melanesian Pidgin) 430
 - 9.8.2 Marking direct vs. indirect objects (KinyaRwanda, Lunda) 431
 - 9.8.3 Marking topical objects (Amharic, Machiguenga) 432
 - 9.8.4 Marking definite objects (Swahili) 433
 - 9.8.5 Marking main vs. subordinate clauses (Bemba) 433
 - 9.8.6 Marking existential-presentative clauses (KinyaRwanda) 433
 - 9.8.7 Binding NP constituents together 434
- 9.9 Indefinite and non-referring pronouns 434

CHAPTER 10

Referential coherence II: Reference and definiteness 437

- 10.1 Introduction 437
- 10.2 Reference 437
 - 10.2.1 The Real World vs. the Universe of Discourse 437
 - 10.2.2 Referential intent 439
 - 10.2.3 The universal quantifier and non-reference 439
- 10.3 The semantics of indefinite reference⁴ 440
 - 10.3.1 Referential opacity 441
 - 10.3.2 Reference and propositional modalities 441
 - 10.3.3 Gradations of referentiality 449
- 10.4 Grammatical marking of indefinite reference 450
 - 10.4.1 Preamble 450
 - 10.4.2 The numeral 'one' as reference marker 450
 - 10.4.3 The demonstrative 'this' as reference marker 452
 - 10.4.4 Noun classifiers and reference markers 453
 - 10.4.5 Grammatical devices that mark non-reference 454

10.5	The pragmatics of indefinite reference: Denotation vs. topicality	455
10.6	Definiteness	459
10.6.1	Definiteness and anaphoric reference	459
10.6.2	Grounding referents to the shared current speech situation (working memory, current attention focus)	460
10.6.3	Grounding to shared generic-lexical knowledge (permanent semantic memory)	460
10.6.4	Anaphoric grounding to the shared current text (long-term episodic memory)	462
10.6.5	Proper names and global access	464
10.6.6	Generic subjects	465
10.6.7	Gradation of definite description	467
10.7	Grammatical marking of definite NPs	468
10.7.1	Distal demonstratives	468
10.7.2	Noun classifiers	469
10.7.3	Definite-accusative markers	470
10.7.4	Direct object and dative shifting	471
10.7.5	Topicalization and definiteness	472
10.7.6	Pronominal object agreement	473
10.7.7	Definiteness, reference and case-roles	473
10.8	The grammar of referential coherence as mental processing instructions	474
