Preface	xiii
PART I. CHOOSING AN ACADEMIC HOME	1
1. Finding the Right Conversation	2
Scholarship as a Social, Sensemaking Activity	3
Identifying Scholarly Conversations	5
Choosing Your Conversation	8
Developing a Scholarly Identity That Informs Scholarly Choices	12
Balancing Attraction, Agreement, and Disagreement	14
Conclusion	18
Notes	19
2. Criteria for Contribution	21
Public Locations for Scholarly Conversation	21
Be Interesting and, if Appropriate, Engaging	24
Choose Significant and Ideally Enduring Topics	28
Be Trustworthy and, Especially for More
Daring Projects, Authoritative	37
Conclusion	37
Notes	38
3. Theoretic Explanation	39
Theoretic Explanation as a Focal Point of Scholarly Contribution	39
Scholarly Explanations as Theory	40
Theoretic Contributions to Scholarly Conversation	44
Criticisms of Theory	47
Supporting Conversation With Theoretic Explanations	52
Targeting Conversants for a Specific Project	54
Conclusion	58
Notes	59

4. Evolution of Scholarly Projects	61
Design Decisions That Shape Contributions to Scholarship	61
Tracing the Development of Scholarly Projects Over Time	69
Interaction With Others' Scholarship	75
Conclusion	79
Notes	80
PART II. DESIGNING YOUR CONTRIBUTION	83
5. Research Design	85
The Purpose of Research Design	85
Design as a Mechanistic and Organic Process	87
Funding as a Stimulus for Good Design	99
The Value of Plain Language	104
Conclusion	106
Notes	106
6. Ontology and Epistemology	108
Basic Definitions	108
Multiple Ontological/Epistemological Positions	111
Ontological and Epistemological Confusions and Disagreements	116
Using Ontology and Epistemology to Find a Novel Contribution	120
Conclusion	124
Notes	124
7. Disciplines, Professions, and Their Subfields of Inquiry	127
The Importance of Academic Institutions	127
Definitions	128
Subfield Networks That Influence Scholarly Inquiry	129
Alternative Modes of Knowledge Production	135
The Personal Face of Institutional Networks	139
Thinking About Disciplines/Professions as a Part of Research Design	140
The Ethics of Knowledge Generation and Dissemination	142
Conclusion	144
Notes	145
8. Literature Review	147
Sensemaking Connections With the Literature	147
Surveying Your Scholarly Domain	155
Critically Reviewing Articles in Your Particular Area of Interest	161
Reviews That Systematically Synthesize the Work of Others	166
Literature Search in the Midst of a Scholarly Project	173

Conclusion	176
Notes	177
9. Qualitative, Quantitative, and Mixed Methods	179
Empirical and Theoretical Explanations	179
Strengths and Weakness of All Methods	183
The Importance of a Personal Skill Set	188
Teaching to Learn More About Methods	191
Monitoring Change in Conversations and Methods Used	192
Reflecting on Experience and Learning From Disappointing Results	194
Conclusion	199
Notes	199
10. Links to Practice and Policy	201
Presenting to a Lay Audience	201
The Practical Relevance of Theory	204
The Theoretic Relevance of Good Practice	206
An Example of Extended Collaboration	209
The Promise and Problems of Insider/Outsider Research	210
Conclusion	215
Notes	215
11. Modeling Theoretic Propositions	217
David Whetten
Introduction	218
The Basics: Constructing and Representing Propositional Theory Using Graphic Models	220
Application: Using Graphic Modeling as a Methodology for Theory Development	227
“So What?”: Putting Your Propositions to Work	244
Conclusion	245
Notes	247
12. Evaluation of Research Design and Outcomes	251
Evaluation as a Scholarly Project Unfolds	251
The Ethics of Submitting Scholarly Work for Evaluation and the Ethics of Evaluating Others	256
Making Critical Judgments and Putting Them Into a Formal Report	263
Conclusion	268
Notes	268

PART III. CONVERSATIONS ABOUT SCHOLARSHIP	269
13. Mike Wallace on Critical Reading and Writing	271
Critical Reading to Learn How to Write for an Audience of Critical Readers	272
Potential Negative Consequences of a Critical Perspective	275
How to Critically Engage With the Literature	278
Comparing Critical Literature Review and Systematic Literature Review	279
Broader Applications of a Critical Perspective	281
Notes	284
14. Gary Gaile, Susan Clarke, and Jim Huff on Controversies About Theory	285
Theory in Disarray?	286
The Significance of “Theoretic” Explanations	288
Interdisciplinary Theory and Practical Problems	292
Teaching About Theory	293
The Evolution of Theoretic Explanations	294
Notes	296
15. Susan Hanson on the Evolution of Multidisciplinary and Coauthored Research Projects	297
Multiple Sources of Project Ideas	298
Project Evolution	300
Working With Coauthors and Other Collaborators	302
Connecting With Multiple Audiences	304
Impact of One Project on Later Scholarship	307
Notes	310
Appendix A. Internet Tools Supporting Scholarship	311
Appendix B. Questions for Those Designing Research Vivek Velamuri	314
Appendix C. Exercises Summary	320
Appendix D. Advice Summary	337
Appendix E. Summary of Political and Career Questions	341
Glossary	344
Selected Bibliography Tobias Fredberg	351
Index	362
About the Author	374
