

Contents

Foreword	vii
Preface	ix
About the author	xiii
Chapter 1: Introducing hospices	1
The work of hospices	1
Helping dying people	3
Activities and therapies	4
Hospice compared to hospital care	6
What is special about a hospice	8
PART I: THE WORK UNDERTAKEN	13
Chapter 2: The nature of the work	15
The rhythm of a day	15
Particular roles	17
Day patients	19
The hospice at night	20
Patients at home	22
Managing the hospice	25
Chapter 3: Responding to patients and relatives	27
Welcoming and reassuring	27
Physical and practical needs	28
Emotional help	30
Spiritual support	31
Discussions about returning home	33
The needs of relatives and friends	35
Children	37
Chapter 4: Working with dying people	39
Helping people to come to terms with dying	39
Returning home to die	43
Recognising the terminal phase	44
The actual death	46

Chapter 5: After a death	51
Giving time to families	51
Preparing the body	53
The next days	55
Attending funerals	59
Bereavement work	60
Subsequent contact with relatives	62
PART II: DIFFICULTIES EXPERIENCED AND COPING WITH THEM	63
Chapter 6: Sources of stress: difficult patients and families	65
Difficult patients and relatives	65
Anger and aggression	67
Patients and families in denial	71
Family neglect	75
Chapter 7: Other sources of stress and their impact	77
Emotional involvement	77
Particular frustrations	81
General pressures of work	84
The impact on staff and their families	87
Chapter 8: Ways of coping	91
Keeping work out of the home	91
Support from family and friends	92
Finding ways to relax	96
Support from the hospice	98
Own spirituality	101
PART III: MOTIVATIONS AND REWARDS	105
Chapter 9: Initial motivation	107
A sense of vocation	107
Prior experience of death	109
Other formative experiences	111
The accidental route	112
Chapter 10: What makes the work worthwhile	115
Feeling involved	115
Responding to challenges	117
The variety of people	119
Feeling valued by patients and families	122
Working with other staff	124
A sense of fun	126

PART IV: REFLECTIONS ON WORKING IN A HOSPICE	129
Chapter 11: Working in a hospice	131
Qualities needed	131
Training	137
Telling people what you do	138
Chapter 12: Reflections on living and dying	141
A good death	141
Choosing the timing of death	142
What happens after death?	145
A sense of mortality	148
Learning what is important	150
Extending the learning from hospice care	152