

Table of Contents

Preface .....	ix
Introduction: The Sacrificial Ritual .....	1
Part I. The Practice of Sacrifice	1
Part II. The Theory of Sacrifice	7
Chapter 1: The Ideal in Baudelaire's Spleen et Idéal .....	15
Part I. A Vision of Order and Beauty	21
Part II. "Glissement": Disorder Leaks into Order	31
Part III. The Cycle of Disorder and Women	37
Part IV. A Spectacle of Writing and a Sacrificial Ritual	65
Part V. Conclusion	75
Chapter 2: Zola and His Heroines: Nana, Albine, and Christine ....	87
Part I. Nana : A Tripartite Structure	89
Part II. Comparisons with La Faute de l'abbé Mouret and L'Oeuvre	103
Part III. Conclusion: Sacrifice and the Realist Order	148
Chapter 3: Cocteau's Oedipus in La Machine infernale .....	159
Part I. Identity in the Eye of the Father, in Sophocles, and in Freud	160
Part II. The Transition from Order to Disorder	185
Part III. Disorder and the Sphinx: Poetic Release	196
Part IV. The Sacrifice of the Female	206
Conclusion: The Role of the Fictional Female .....	217
Bibliography .....	225
General Index .....	237
Index of Baudelaire's Poems .....	241
Index of Critics .....	243