CONTENTS

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

PREFACE

1. THE MODELS OF PRE-UNIVERSITY LEARNING 1
The Development of Creative Learning 2; Study Skills in Sixth Form Colleges 7; Selection for Higher Education 8; References 12

2. DIFFERENT STYLES OF LEARNING IN HIGHER EDUCATION AND THEIR EFFECT ON THE STUDENTS 14
Expectation and Reality 14; The Student's Profile 16; The Need to Establish Identity 19; The Students' Perception of the Learning Process 20; The Reality of the Learning Experience 21; New Styles of Learning 25; Examples 27; How Imaginative Teaching is Rewarded 32; References 33

3. THE CRITERIA FOR 'LEARNING TO LEARN' 36
The Intellectual Development of the Student 37; Study Skills in the Sixth Form and Study Skills at College 38; The Development of the Student at University 39; Dimensions of Learning to Learn 42; The Link Between Content and Skills 47; The State of Learning to Learn at the Present Time 49; The Historic Development of Study Skills in the United States of America 50; Development in Britain 51; References 56

4. INDIVIDUAL AND GROUP METHODS 60
The Objectives of Learning to Learn 61; Learning to Learn Methods that Are Practised in Educational Institutions 62; The Controversy of Rapid Reading Courses 67; The Choice Between Divided and Group Methods 68; Conclusion 70; References 70

5. IMPROVING LEARNING COMPETENCE - WITH PARTICULAR REFERENCE TO THE UNIVERSITY OF READING 72
An Eclectic Approach 72; The Variation in Policy Between Universities and Polytechnics 72; The Learning Resource Centre (LRC) 75; The University

Counsellor 78; The Development of Group Work 80; References 87

6. THE PROBLEM FOR OVERSEAS STUDENTS AND FOR THE INSTITUTIONS WHERE THEY STUDY C.J. Weir 89
Is it Just a Language Problem? 89; Socio-cultural Problems 92; Nature and Extent of Language Problems 94; The Need for Remedial English 99; The Native Speaker Norm 100; Conclusions 101; References 102

7. STUDENTS WITH SPECIALISED LEARNING DIFFICULTIES 106
Introduction 106; Overseas Students 106; The English Conversation Scheme 110; Post-graduate Students 111; Mature Students 114; Disabled Students 118; Conclusion 119; References 120

8. CHANGE IN THE INDIVIDUAL 122
The Effect of the Counsellor's Personality 124; The Problems of Society 124; The Role of the Specialist 125; The Lack of Community Provision 126; The Counsellor in General Practice 126; Counsellors in Specialised Units in the Community 127; Voluntary Counselling in the Community 127; Counselling in Higher Education 128; The Need for Counsellors to be Specialised 128; Counselling Training Programmes 129; The Financial Justification for Counselling 129; Admission to Higher Education 129; The Present Position 129; The Teaching Staff's Perception of Counselling 130; Factors Affecting Counselling in Higher Education 130; The Limitations of Counselling 132; The Treatment of Emotional and Psychological Problems 133; The Students' Role in Increasing Motivation 140; Relationships 143; The Generation Gap 145; The Need for Counselling the Physically Handicapped 147; References 152

9. CHANGE IN HIGHER EDUCATION INSTITUTIONS 157
Institutional Factors that may Impede the Learning Process 157; The Definition of Universities 162; Change in Organisations 162; Change in Universities 166; The Causes of Student Unrest 166; Recommended Way in Which Changes Might be Instituted in Universities 168; References 172

CONCLUSIONS 175
References 176

APPENDIX i 179
APPENDIX ii 184

APPENDIX iii 187
APPENDIX iv 190
APPENDIX v 192
APPENDIX vi 194

INDEX 195