

Contents

Preface	v
PART ONE: On Becoming a Student	1
1 Learning in an Educational System	1
Introduction: Your approach to study	1
Your previous study experience	4
Motivation and learning	9
What motivates you to study?	11
You and the educational system	13
Summary	19
2 Time and Learning	21
Introduction	21
Planning	21
A two-part strategy: Part one	23
A two part strategy: Part two	26
Planning your study	29
Where to study?	34
Nobody's perfect	36
3 Remember and Learn	37
Introduction: 'If I only had a better memory!'	37
Your experience of memory	38
Three stages in remembering	42
Remembering what you study	46
Patterns of learning and concentration	49
The use of mnemonics	51
Retention and development	53
Summary	55
PART TWO: Developing Learning Skills	57
Guide to Part Two	59

4 Write and Learn I: Essays	62
Introduction: 'I'm going to set you an essay ...'	62
You and essay writing	62
Working notes for an essay assignment	66
Target 1: Setting the scene	68
Target 2: Examining the task	69
Target 3: Collecting the material	70
Target 4: Planning the outline	73
Target 5: Writing the essay	77
Target 6: The review	78
Target 7: Learning from the essay	80
Conclusion: So what have you learnt?	81
5 Read and Learn	83
Introduction: Improving reading efficiency	83
Part One: Reading Development	84
How do you read now?	84
Purpose in reading	86
Checklists for your next reading assignment	90
A closer reading	95
'How do I remember what I read?'	97
A summary of Part One: Reading Development	99
Part Two: Faster Reading	100
What is reading?	100
Common faults in reading	103
Practice makes faster	106
Summary	107
6 Note and Learn	109
Introduction: 'Nota bene'	109
Why take notes?	110
How are you taking notes now?	111
Selecting the essentials	112
Pattern notes	115
Taking notes in lectures – a three-stage guide	115
Taking notes from books – a three-stage guide	118
The layout of notes	119
The language of notes	121
The storage of notes	122
Conclusion	123

7 Finding out and Learning	125
Introduction: projects and dissertations	125
Why have projects?	126
What type of projects do you have in your course?	128
Choosing and planning a project	132
Researching your project	136
Maintaining progress through the project	144
Presenting your project	146
Assessing what you've learnt	147
Supplement: Using sound and pictures, a guide to audio visual planning	150
8 Write and Learn II: Reports	156
Introduction	156
Build on your essay-writing experience	157
Relationships between projects and reports	159
Writing a scientific or technical report	160
Writing non-technical reports and theses	163
Learn from your report	169
Summary	170
Supplement: Preparing references and bibliographies	170
9 Language, Small Groups and Learning	174
Introduction: learning the language	174
Language as a tool for learning	175
Types of small group learning	179
The group as an environment for learning	184
Conclusion: ways to make it work	190
Supplement: Talking to an audience	191
10 Exams and Learning	202
Introduction	202
Why have exams?	203
Evaluate your present techniques	206
Revise and learn	207
The revision process	214
In the exam	218
Different types of exam	221
Summary	225
Post script	226