

Contents

Preface	9
Abbreviations	15
1. The Division of German Social Democracy	19
German Social Democracy in 1914
The Impact of War
Schism
2. The New Party (1917)	53
Radical Socialism and Popular Radicalism
The Organizational and Regional Balance
3. Toward Revolution (1917–1918)	80
The USPD and Mass Action
Party Tactics: Drift toward Radicalism
The Debate on Bolshevism
Revolutionary Preparations and Final Crisis
4. The Revolutionary Regime in Berlin (November 1918)	118
Advent of the New Regime
The Problem of the Future of the Revolution
The Radicals and the Executive Council
Socialist Government in Action
5. Patterns of Revolution outside Berlin (November 1918 to January 1919)	155
Munich and Kurt Eisner
The USPD as Ruling Minority: Hamburg, Bremen, and Braunschweig
The USPD as Dominant Party: Leipzig and Halle
Other Patterns of Revolution
The National Position of the USPD
6. Crisis in the Provisional Government and the USPD (December 1918)	183
The Rise of Unrest
The Congress of Workers' and Soldiers' Councils
Collapse of the Joint Socialist Cabinet
Crisis in the USPD

7. Civil War (January to May 1919)	212
First Confrontations: Berlin and Bremen
The General Strike Movement: The Ruhr, Halle, and Berlin
Other Struggles and Final Phase
8. Adjusting to the Initial Defeat of the Revolution (1919)	241
Growth
New Programs and Tactics
Efforts at Unity: The Berlin Party Congress and After
Purposeful Interlude: Versailles
Revolutionary Ebb Tide and the Independents
9. Revolutionary Internationalism and Consolidation of the Left (August to December 1919)	279
Emergence of the Problem of the International
German Communists and the Comintern in Germany
The Leipzig Party Congress
10. The Frustration of the Left (December 1919 to April 1920)	306
Uncertainty on the International Scene
Fiasco in the Council Movement and Resurgence of the Moderates
The Party Executive and the Kapp Putsch
The Kapp Putsch, Working-Class Militancy, and Armed Action
11. Toward Schism (April to October 1920)	341
Aftermath of the Kapp Crisis
Apogee: The Elections of June 1920
Negotiating with the Third International
Schism
12. The Rump USPD (October 1920 to June 1922)	381
Splitting and Reconsolidation
Image and Purposes of the Party
Vicissitudes of the VKPD
Relations with the SPD: Rapprochement and Rebuff
Drift and Conflict
13. Reunification (June to September 1922)	419
Epilogue	439
Appendixes	447
1. The Socialist Share of the Poll in Major Elections, 1919 to 1921
2. Membership of USPD Reichstag and National Assembly Delegations
3. The Party Leadership
4. Biographical Sketches
Sources	468
Index to References	481
Index	485