

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction
Pragmatism and Social Hope: Deepening Democracy in Global Contexts	1
Why America and the World Need Deeper Democracy and Widely Shared Social Hope	1
The Role of Public Philosophy in the Twenty-first Century?	8
Public Philosophy, Pragmatism, and Social Hope	12
Why We Must Reconstruct Rorty's Dream-Story and Map to Achieving Our Country	15
My Pragmatist American Story and Map to Social Hope: Some Chapter Landmarks	20
1 Achieving Our Country, Achieving Our World: Rorty, Baldwin, and Social Hope	29
The Painful Beginnings of America's Twenty-first-Century Struggle for Social Hope	30
American Stories and American Hopes: Rorty Versus Baldwin	36
Social Hope and Forgiveness?	38
Social Hope, Forgetting, and National Pride?	41
Rorty's Democracy: Patriotic Dream, Moving Image, Leading Story, Civic Religion	45
Intellectual Self-Transformation in a Time of Democratic Emergency?	52
The Better Party for American Progressives to Join: Whitman, Dewey, Baldwin	57
2 American Dreaming: From Loss and Fear to Vision and Hope	60
From Stories of Loss and Fear to Vision, Hope, and Action	61

	American Civic Religion and Its Opponents: Rorty's Losses, Fears, Vision, and Hope	63
	Do We Need a "Socialist" Metaphysics and Pragmatist Philosophical Methods?	71
	Rorty's Transformative Vision: Intellectuals Rejoin the Reformist Left	81
	Recentering the Economic Issues: Rorty's Nightmare and the Dream Beyond	85
	Participatory Democracy and the End of Capitalism: "Useless" Ideals?	89
	Collaborative Storytelling and Shared Vision Questing: Lessons from Native America	92
3	Hope's Progress: Remembering Dewey's Pragmatist Social Epistemology in the Twenty-first Century	100
	Why We Need Well-Grounded Social Hopes Now	101
	Beyond Ethnocentrism: Why We Need a Pragmatist Social Epistemology	108
	Reclaiming Dewey's Intercultural Pragmatist Epistemology	116
	Aiding Hope's Progress	124
4	Choosing Our History, Choosing Our Hopes: Truth and Reconciliation Between Our Past and Our Future	127
	Are Knowledge of History and Hope Incompatible?	128
	Choosing Our History, Choosing Our Hopes?	131
	Rorty's Whitman: A World Without Sin and Knowledge?	135
	Rorty's Dewey: A World Without Truth?	137
	Rorty's American Black Box: A Substitute for a Pragmatist Social Epistemology?	140
	Remembering Complex, Painful Truths of History as a Basis for Shared Social Hopes	143
	A Pragmatist Path to Social Hope: Critical Memories, Deep Truths, Democratic Loyalties	149
	Conclusion: Only True, Shared Stories Can Restore Shared Social Hopes	155

5	Trying Deeper Democracy: Pragmatist Lessons from the American Experience	158
	Part 1. A Dialectical History of American Democratic Theory and Practice	158
	Two Strands in American Democratic History: Representation and Direct Participation	159
	Experimenting with Democracy: Our First Postrevolutionary Generations	162
	Reconstructing America: The Progressive Era and the City Beautiful Movement	168
	The Struggle Widens and Deepens: The Interwar Years and Their Aftermath	169
	Winning and Defeating the “War on Poverty”	172
	Peacemakers and Anarchists: The Anti-Vietnam War Movement and Its Offspring	176
	The Trilateral Commission Strikes Back	178
	Part 2. Participatory Democracy: Movements, Campaigns, and Democratic Living	181
	Participatory Democracy: A Useless Ideal for the Twenty-first Century?	181
	Rorty’s Hero-Based Claim: Campaigns, Not Movements, as Frameworks for Living	185
	America’s Historical Experience: Effective Campaigns Require Broader Movements	187
	Transformative Movements and Democratic Living in a Dangerous, Uncertain World	191
6	The Continuously Planning City: Imperatives and Examples for Deepening Democracy	194
	Urban Schools of Deeper, “Second-Strand” Democracy	195
	Contemporary “Second-Strand” Imperatives for Democratic Citizen Participation	198
	Deepening and Expanding America’s Cultures of Democratic Participation	203

Some Urban Experiments: Institutionalizing Direct Citizen Participation in Government	209
Creating Linkages: Government Partnerships with Nongovernmental Organizations	215
Other Sites for Direct Citizen Participation: Courts, Campuses, Movements, Colloquies	218
7 The Hope of Democratic Living: Choosing Active Citizen Participation for Preferable Global Futures	225
Living with Hope, Faith, and Tragic Meliorism in the Twenty-first Century	226
The Rebirth of Democratic Citizen Participation: A Global Story, a Working Hypothesis	227
Educating for Dewey's Personal Democracy: Conflict Resolution and Citizen Voice	232
Dewey on Deepening Democracy Through Citizen Participation: A Helpful Guide?	238
A Conclusion and a Hypothesis for Living: Risking Our Hopes on Citizen Participation	241
Notes	251
Bibliography	269
Index	287